UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

DIANNE KNOX; WILLIAM L.
BLAYLOCK; ROBERT A. CONOVER;
EDWARD L. DOBROWOLSKI, JR.;
KARYN GIL; THOMAS JACOB HASS;

On Behalf of Themselves and the Class They Seek to Represent,

No. 2:05-cv-02198-MCE-KJM

Plaintiffs,

v.

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

STEVE WESTLY, Controller,
State of California; and CALIFORNIA STATE EMPLOYEES
ASSOCIATION, LOCAL 1000,
SERVICE EMPLOYEES
INTERNATIONAL UNION, AFL-CIO-
CLC,

Defendants.

1 Through the present action, Plaintiffs, state employees, seek 2 redress against Defendants, Steve Westly, the Controller of the 3 State of California ("Controller"), and California State Employees
4 Association, Local 1000, Service Employees International Union, 5 AFL-CIO, CLC ("the Union"), for violations of their First, Fifth, 6 and Fourteenth Amendment rights under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 by, inter 7 alia, using Plaintiffs' monies to support political causes without 8 satisfying constitutionally required procedural safeguards as 9 compelled by Chicago Teachers Union v. Hudson, 475 U.S. 292 (1986).

10 Plaintiffs seek Summary Judgment as to the case in its 11 entirety, or, alternatively, Summary Adjudication of individual 12 claims, arguing that Defendants failed to provide any notice to 13 employees regarding the basis for the temporary assessment 14 imposed by the Union from September 2005 through December of 15 2006. Defendants filed a cross-motion seeking Partial Summary 16 Judgment as to the nonobjecting class of Plaintiffs, arguing that 17 those Plaintiffs consented to the use of their wages to fund the 18 Union's temporary assesement when they failed to object after 19 receiving the Union's annual Hudson notice. Defendants also ask 20 that this Court grant Summary Adjudication limiting the relevant 21 time period of Plaintiffs' claims to September 2005 through June 22 2006 (inclusive). For the reasons set forth below, Plaintiffs' 23 Motion is granted, and Defendants' Motion is granted in part and 24 denied in part.<sup>1</sup>

27 <sup>1</sup> Because it is determined that oral argument would not be 28 of material assistance, the Court ordered this matter submitted on the briefing. E.D. Cal. Local Rule 78-230(h).

1 BACKGROUND

3 Though the following underlying facts material to the 4 disposition of this Motion are undisputed, the Court is aware 5 that the parties' characterizations of those facts diverge 6 greatly.

7 Plaintiffs represent two classes of nonunion employees,
8 those who objected to the Union's June 2005 Hudson Notice 9 ("objectors") and those who did not ("nonobjectors")
10 (collectively "Plaintiffs"). See Pls.' Statement of Undisputed 11 Material Facts and Defs.' Response Thereto, No. 11 ("UF").
12 Defendants are the State Controller and the Union. Id., Nos. 8-13 9.

14 The State of California has recognized the Union as the 15 exclusive bargaining agent for the Plaintiffs and other State 16 employees in bargaining units designated as Bargaining Units 1, 17 3, 4, 11, 14, 15, 17, 20, and 21. Id., No. 16. The Union and 18 the State of California have entered a series of Memoranda of 19 Understanding ("MOUs") controlling the terms and conditions of 20 employment for Plaintiffs. Id. One such MOU includes a 21 provision requiring that all State employees in these Bargaining 22 Units join the Union as formal Union members, or if opting not to 23 join, have deducted from their wages a proportionate amount of 24 agency fees. Id., No. 17.

25 The Union issues a notice pursuant to Hudson every June.
26 This constitutionally required "Hudson notice" is meant to 27 provide nonmembers with, inter alia, an adequate explanation of 28 the basis of the agency fee. Hudson at 310.

1 Additionally the notice provides that, for thirty (30) days after 2 it is issued, nonunion employees can object to the collection of 3 full union dues and can elect instead to have only the reduced 4 rate deducted during the upcoming fee year. Finally, during that 5 30-day period, nonmembers can also challenge the Union's 6 calculation of its chargeable and nonchargeable expenses. Such 7 challenges are resolved by an impartial decisionmaker. UF, 8 No. 18.

9 In June, 2005, the Union issued its annual Hudson notice
10 ("2005 Hudson Notice"). This notice did not indicate that a 11 temporary assessment would be included in the 2005-06 dues and 12 fees, but stated that "[d]ues are subject to change without 13 further notice to fee payers." Id., No. 27.

14 The 2005 Hudson Notice set the agency fee to be deducted 15 from nonunion employee paychecks for the 2005-06 fiscal year at 16 99.1% of dues. That Notice also informed nonmembers that the 17 reduced agency fee ("fair share fee") of 56.35% of the Union's 18 annual dues, would be charged to nonmembers who objected to 19 paying the full agency fee and who requested a rebate pursuant to 20 the procedures and deadlines outlined in the Notice. The 56.35%
21 was based on the Union's actual expenditures for the year ending 22 December 31, 2004, in which the Union calculated chargeable 23 expenditures to be 56.35% of its total expenditures. Id., 24 No. 28.

27 ///

28 ///

1 On July 30, 2005, the Union proposed an "Emergency Temporary 2 Assessment to Build a Political Fight-Back Fund" ("Assessment")
3 for "use for a broad range of political expenses, including 4 television and radio advertising, direct mail, voter 5 registration, voter education, and get out the vote activities in 6 our work sites and in our communities across California," 7 specifically stating that "[t]he Fund will not be used for 8 regular costs of the union - such as office rent, staff salaries 9 or routine equipment replacement, etc." Id., No. 20.

10 Additionally, the Union claimed that the Assessment was to "be 11 used specifically in the political arenas of California to defend 12 and advance the interests of members of the Union and the 13 important public services they provide."<sup>2</sup> This Assessment was 14 expected to raise $12 million for the Union. Id., No. 23. On 15 August 27, 2005, Union delegates to the CSEA General Council 16 voted to implement the temporary dues increase of one-fourth of 17 one percent of salary to create this "Political Fight Back Fund."
18 Id., No. 22.

---

23
24 <sup>2</sup> The Court notes Defendants' assertion that the Assessment 25 was actually used "for a broad variety of expenditures, many of 26 which were for chargeable activities." As is discussed, infra, 27 this is not material to the disposition of this Motion.
28 Additionally, the Court is cognizant of Defendants' position that none of their publications at the time the Assessment was adopted actually stated that the Assessment would be used "exclusively" for purposes set forth in those quotations or "exclusively" for nonchargeable expenditures. This, too, is immaterial to the Court's disposition of the current Motion.

1 On August 31, 2005, the Union sent another letter, addressed
2 to "Local 1000 Members and Fair Share Fee Payers." The letter 3 stated that Union members were subject to a dues increase and 4 that "[t]he $45 per month cap on...regular dues of 1% of gross 5 pay [would] continue in effect, but [would] not apply to this 6 additional .0025 temporary increase." Id., No. 29. That letter 7 also claimed that the Union would use the funds from the 8 Assessment to "defeat Proposition 76 and Proposition 75 on 9 November 8." Additionally, according to the Union, it intended 10 to "defeat another attack on [its] pension plan" in June of 2006, 11 and "[i]n November 2006, [it would] need to elect a governor and 12 a legislature who support public employees and the services 13 [they] provide." Compl., Exh. D.

14 After receiving this letter, Plaintiff Dobrowolski called 15 the Union's Sacramento office, and was directed to its Riverside 16 office where he left a message for Jodi Smith, area manager.
17 Smith returned his call and stated that, even if Dobrowolski
18 objected to the payment of the full agency fee, there was nothing 19 he could do about the September increase for the Assessment. She 20 also stated that "we are in the fight of our lives," that the 21 Assessment was needed, and that there was nothing that could be 22 done to stop the Union's expenditure of that Assessment for 23 political purposes. UF, No. 34.

24 Pursuant to the Assessment, the Controller began deducting 25 additional fees at the end of September, 2005. Id., No. 31.
26 Plaintiffs subsequently initiated this action in November of that 27 year.

STANDARD

3 The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provide for summary 4 judgment when "the pleadings, depositions, answers to 5 interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with 6 affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any 7 material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment 8 as a matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c). One of the 9 principal purposes of Rule 56 is to dispose of factually
10 unsupported claims or defenses. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 11 U.S. 317, 325 (1986).

12 Rule 56 also allows a court to grant summary adjudication on 13 part of a claim or defense. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a) ("A party 14 claiming relief may move...for summary judgment on all or part of 15 the claim."); see also Allstate Ins. Co. v. Madan, 889 F. Supp.
16 374, 378-79 (C.D. Cal. 1995); France Stone Co., Inc. v. Charter
17 Township of Monroe, 790 F. Supp. 707, 710 (E.D. Mich. 1992).

18 The standard that applies to a motion for summary 19 adjudication is the same as that which applies to a motion for 20 summary judgment. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a), 56(c); Mora v.
21 ChemTronics, 16 F. Supp. 2d. 1192, 1200 (S.D. Cal. 1998).

22 Under summary judgment practice, the moving party 23 always bears the initial responsibility of informing 24 the district court of the basis for its motion, and 25 identifying those portions of 'the pleadings, 26 depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions
27 on file together with the affidavits, if any,' which it 28 believes demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.

27 Celotex at 323 (quoting Rule 56(c)).

28 ///

1 If the moving party meets its initial responsibility, the 2 burden then shifts to the opposing party to establish that a 3 genuine issue as to any material fact actually does exist.
4 Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 5 585-87 (1986); First Nat'l Bank v. Cities Serv. Co., 391 U.S.
6 253, 288-89 (1968).

7 In attempting to establish the existence of this factual 8 dispute, the opposing party must tender evidence of specific 9 facts in the form of affidavits, and/or admissible discovery 10 material, in support of its contention that the dispute exists.
11 Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(e). The opposing party must demonstrate that 12 the fact in contention is material, i.e., a fact that might 13 affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law, and that 14 the dispute is genuine, i.e., the evidence is such that a 15 reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party.
16 Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248, 251-52
17 (1986); Owens v. Local No. 169, Assoc. of Western Pulp and Paper
18 Workers, 971 F.2d 347, 355 (9th Cir. 1987). Stated another way, 19 "before the evidence is left to the jury, there is a preliminary 20 question for the judge, not whether there is literally no 21 evidence, but whether there is any upon which a jury could 22 properly proceed to find a verdict for the party producing it, 23 upon whom the onus of proof is imposed." Anderson, 477 U.S. at 24 251 (quoting Improvement Co. v. Munson, 14 Wall. 442, 448, 20 25 L.Ed. 867 (1872)).

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 As the Supreme Court explained, "[w]hen the moving party has 2 carried its burden under Rule 56(c), its opponent must do more 3 than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the 4 material facts .... Where the record taken as a whole could not 5 lead a rational trier of fact to find for the nonmoving party, 6 there is no 'genuine issue for trial.'" Matsushita, 475 U.S. at 7 586-87.

8 In resolving a summary judgment motion, the evidence of the 9 opposing party is to be believed, and all reasonable inferences 10 that may be drawn from the facts placed before the court must be 11 drawn in favor of the opposing party. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 255.
12 Nevertheless, inferences are not drawn out of the air, and it is 13 the opposing party's obligation to produce a factual predicate 14 from which the inference may be drawn. Richards v. Nielsen
15 Freight Lines, 602 F. Supp. 1224, 1244-45 (E.D. Cal. 1985), 16 aff'd, 810 F.2d 898 (9th Cir. 1987).

19 I. PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

20 A. The 2005 Hudson Notice Did Not Provide an Adequate 21 Explanation of the Basis of the Assessment

22 The dispute in this case, while of great import, is over a 23 relatively simple question: Did Defendants' June 2005 Hudson 24 Notice provide "an adequate explanation of the basis" supporting 25 the subsequent September 2005 Assessment?

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 This somewhat narrow issue is drawn against a broader 2 backdrop of First Amendment jurisprudence. There is no question 3 that "[r]equiring nonunion employees to support their collective-4 bargaining representative 'has an impact upon their First 5 Amendment interests." Hudson at 301 (quoting Abood v. Detroit 6 Bd. of Educ., 431 U.S. 209, 222 (1977)). Nevertheless, it is 7 constitutional for a "public employer to designate a union as the 8 exclusive collective-bargaining representative of its employees, 9 and to require nonunion employees, as a condition of employment, 10 to pay a fair share of the union's costs of negotiating and 11 administering a collective-bargaining agreement .... [H]owever, 12 ... nonunion employees do have a constitutional right to 'prevent 13 the Union's spending a part of their required service fees to 14 contribute to political candidates and to express political views 15 unrelated to its duties as exclusive bargaining representative.'" Hudson 16 at 301-302 (quoting Abood at 234). The fees charged to 17 nonunion employees for services related to a union's collective-18 bargaining activities are termed "fair share" fees.

19 In Hudson, the Supreme Court elaborated "that the 20 constitutional requirements for the Union's collection of agency 21 fees include an adequate explanation of the basis for the fee, a 22 reasonably prompt opportunity to challenge the amount of the fee 23 before an impartial decisionmaker, and an escrow for the amounts 24 reasonably in dispute while such challenges are pending." Hudson 25 at 310. Notices issued pursuant to this language have come to be 26 known as "Hudson Notices." Wagner v. Prof'l Eng'rs in Cal.
27 Gov't, 354 F.3d 1036, 1039 (9th Cir. 2004).

28 ///

1 After receiving a Hudson notice, "the nonunion employee has 2 the burden of raising an objection, but ... the union retains the 3 burden of proof" as to the appropriate proportion of fair share
4 fees. Hudson at 306 (citing Abood at 239-240 ("Since the unions 5 possess the facts and records from which the proportion of 6 political to total union expenditures can reasonably be 7 calculated, basic considerations of fairness compel that they, 8 not the individual employees, bear the burden of [proof].")).
9 Additionally, the important policies underlying Hudson inform the 10 determination of whether a Hudson notice is adequate. "Basic 11 considerations of fairness, as well as concern for the First 12 Amendment rights at stake, ...dictate that the potential objectors 13 be given sufficient information to gauge the propriety of the 14 union's fee." Hudson at 306. "Leaving the nonunion employees in 15 the dark about the source of the figure for the agency fee-and 16 requiring them to object in order to receive information-does not 17 adequately protect the careful distinctions drawn in [prior case 18 law]." Hudson at 306.

19 Hudson has been interpreted in later cases as setting the 20 minimum constitutional protections that a union must provide 21 nonunion employees. See Davenport v. Wash. Educ. Ass'n, ___ U.S.
22 ___, 127 S. Ct. 2372, 2379 (2007). Indeed, our Supreme Court has 23 referred to the Hudson requirements as a "constitutional floor."

1 To date, only the Northern District of California has had 2 the opportunity to address the Hudson requirements on facts
3 similar to this case. On two separate occasions that court 4 determined that a union's annual Hudson notice provided adequate 5 information to supply a basis for a newly-imposed, post-objection 6 period, 10% increase in fees and dues. See Liegmann v. Cal.
7 Teachers Ass'n, 395 F. Supp. 2d 922 (N.D. Cal. 2005) (addressing 8 the question in the context of an application for a Temporary 9 Restraining Order ("TRO")) (Liegmann I); Liegmann v. Cal.
10 Teachers Ass'n, 2006 WL 1795123 (N.D. Cal. 2006) (addressing the 11 issue in the context of cross-motions for summary judgment)
12 (Liegmann II).

13 In Liegmann I, that court was confronted with facts similar 14 to those this Court considers today. That union issued its 15 annual Hudson notice and subsequently implemented an 16 approximately 10% increase in dues and fair share fees to be used 17 either wholly or partially for political purposes. Liegmann I at 18 925-927. Under the standard for reviewing TRO applications, that 19 court had to balance the potential hardships to the parties.
20 Liegmann I at 925. The court balanced the union's and the 21 nonobjectors' constitutional rights against those of the 22 objectors and determined that the employee plaintiffs had failed 23 to show that the balance tipped in their favor.<sup>3</sup> Id. at 926.

24 ///

---

26 <sup>3</sup> To the extent the Northern District relied on an apparent 27 need to protect the union's constitutional entitlement to 28 nonunion employees' fees, that decision cannot stand. See Davenport v. Washington Education Association, ___ U.S. ___, 127
S. Ct. 2372, 2379 (2007).

1 When examining the likelihood of success on the merits, the 2 Liegman I court stated, "This Court declines to find nonmembers 3 are further entitled to another Hudson Notice, in advance, 4 detailing exactly how much of the additional revenue generated by 5 a fee increase will be spent on which purpose. There is nothing
6 in Hudson or subsequent authority which requires that Hudson 7 Notices provide such advance detail." Liegmann I at 927. That 8 court went on to determine that nothing in the facts indicated 9 that the "increase [was] so extraordinary that it require[d] a 10 departure from the procedure approved in Hudson." Id. at 927.

11 In Liegmann II, the Northern District revisited the same 12 facts in the more developed posture of cross-motions for summary
13 judgment. As in this case, that union argued, and that court 14 agreed, that the standard Hudson notice provided adequate 15 information regarding the subsequent dues increase. Liegmann II 16 at *3. That court further determined that the assessment was not 17 so extraordinary as to warrant a departure from customary Hudson 18 procedures. Notably, that court did not have before it a case 19 raising the "question of whether an assessment for purely 20 political purposes would necessitate a deviation from Hudson 21 because the facts of [that] case [did] not raise such a 22 question." Liegmann II at *5.

23 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 This Court, too, need only engage in a straight-forward 2 Hudson analysis to determine whether, under traditional 3 principles, the Union's 2005 Hudson Notice was adequate to 4 provide a basis for its Assessment.<sup>4</sup>

5 Critical to the current endeavor, and hotly disputed between 6 the parties, is the characterization of the Assessment. As a 7 threshold issue, this Court will address the parties'
8 disagreement regarding the actual magnitude of the Assessment's
9 impact. Plaintiffs state that the Assessment resulted in a 25-10 35% increase in fees paid by nonmembers. Defendants, to the 11 contrary, attempt to align their cause with Liegmann, where the 12 court addressed a 10% increase in fair share fees, by arguing 13 that current objectors only saw an increase of 14.09%.
14 Defendants reach this conclusion by pointing out that, at least 15 for those who objected to the 2005 Hudson Notice, the only 16 portion of the increase they would be required to pay is 56.35% 17 of the 25% increase, which equates to a 14.09% increase in the 18 deduction from the objector's salary.<sup>5</sup> This figure is somewhat 19 misleading, however, because it refers only to the increase in 20 the percentage of salary deducted from objectors' wages and not 21 to the percentage increase in fair share fees paid by nonunion 22 employees.

23 ///

---

24
25 <sup>4</sup> Because the Court finds the 2005 Hudson Notice legally 26 inadequate under its traditional Hudson analysis, it is not 27 necessary to consider whether the current facts, when compared to those in the Liegmann cases, present such an extraordinary set of circumstances as to warrant a departure from Hudson.

28 <sup>5</sup> The percentage of salary deducted from nonobjectors increased by 24.775% (99.1% x 25%).

1 Plaintiffs' characterization of the percentage increase in 2 fair share fees is more on point. Standard dues paid by those 3 objectors earning $4500 per month would be capped at 1% of 4 salary, or $45, per month. The Assessment was not subject to 5 this cap. Therefore, someone earning $4500 would be assessed an 6 additional .25% of his or her salary, or $11.25. Since this 7 person was an objector, he or she would only be required to pay 8 56.35% of the above union dues. In this case, that equals an 9 additional $6.34, which is approximately a 14% increase when 10 compared to the $45 monthly dues. However, objectors would not 11 have paid $45 in union dues. They would have paid only their pro 12 rata share, 56.35% of $45, which is approximately $25.34.
13 Therefore, the $6.34 increase actually equates to an increase of 14 approximately 25% in fair share fees.<sup>6</sup>

15 Additionally, because the standard dues are capped at 1% of 16 salary, and the Assessment was not subject to this cap, those 17 objectors who earned in excess of $4500 per month, would see this 18 proportion grow as their salaries increased.<sup>7</sup> Therefore, the 19 fair share fees paid by both objectors and nonobjectors actually 20 increased by a much greater margin than Defendants would like to 21 suggest.

---

22 <sup>6</sup> A nonobjector would see the same increase ( $99.1\% \times $45.00$ 23  $= $44.60$ ;  $99.1\% \times $11.25 = $11.15$ ;  $$11.15/$44.60 = 25\%$ ).

24 <sup>7</sup> As an example, an objector earning $6000 per month 25 would pay only his pro rata share of 1% of his monthly salary, 26 capped at $45, again $25.34. However, the cap would not limit 27 the amount allocated to him for the Assessment. Therefore, he 28 would be required to pay his pro rata share of .25% of 1% of his salary, in this case an additional $8.45. This equates to an increase in his fair share fee of approximately 33%. A nonobjector earning the same amount would see the same approximate increase.

1 This increase represents a material change in the amount of funds
2 nonunion employees were required to contribute to Union 3 expenditures.

4 More importantly, however, is a determination of the nature 5 of the Assessment. Plaintiffs ask the Court to view the 6 Assessment as a fund intended solely for political and 7 ideological purposes. Defendants disagree and request this Court
8 view it as an ordinary dues and fees increase. This distinction 9 is relevant because there is no case law directly on point 10 dealing with an assessment intended solely to fund political and 11 ideological goals. However, this Court finds that the semantic 12 arguments are not dispositive and engages in the current 13 discussion only to clarify its opinion. Regardless of how the 14 assessment is cast, the Courts' decision is the same.

15 Based on the Union's own initial characterization of the 16 Assessment, the fund was intended for political purposes. The 17 Court is cognizant of the fact that, in retrospect, the Union may 18 be able to show that the entire fund was not used for 19 nonchargeable, political or ideological purposes. Based on that, 20 Defendants appear to argue that if any of the Assessment's funds 21 were spent on chargeable activities, the Assessment should be 22 treated as an ordinary dues and fees increase. This argument 23 defies logic.

24 ///

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 First and foremost, the Union specifically couched its 2 proposed assessment as an "Emergency Temporary Assessment to 3 Build a Political Fight-Back Fund" for "use for a broad range of 4 political expenses, including television and radio advertising, 5 direct mail, voter registration, voter education, and get out the 6 vote activities in our work sites and in our communities across 7 California." Additionally, the Union stated that the fund was 8 not to be used "for regular costs of the union - such as office 9 rent, staff salaries or routine equipment replacement, etc."
10 Rather, it was to "be used specifically in the political arenas 11 of California to defend and advance the interests of members of 12 the Union and the important public services they provide." See 13 UF, Nos. 20, 23.

14 When employees were officially notified of the Assessment, 15 the Union stated that it intended to use the funds to "defeat 16 Proposition 76 and Proposition 75," to "defeat another attack on 17 [its] pension plan" in June of 2006, and to "elect a governor and 18 a legislature who [would] support public employees and the 19 services [they] provide" in November of 2006. Id., No 29; See 20 Compl., Exh. D. It is hard to imagine any circumstances in which 21 it could be more clear that an Assessment was passed for 22 political and ideological purposes.

23 Nevertheless, the Union argues that not all of the funds 24 were used for political purposes, and, even if they were, not all 25 political purposes are nonchargeable. However, the adequacy of 26 Hudson notices should not be viewed through a lens skewed by the 27 benefit of hindsight.

28 ///

1 The undisputed facts surrounding the implementation of the 2 Assessment evidence that the Union fully intended to use the 12 3 million additional dollars it anticipated to raise for political 4 purposes. Following the Union's logic, it should be required 5 only to show that some small fraction of this fund was used for 6 chargeable purposes in order to justify subverting its Hudson 7 responsibilities.

8 Defendants call for the Court to be practical. However, 9 they cannot simultaneously avoid that call for practicality
10 themselves. The Union controls the categorization of its own 11 expenses. Following Defendants' reasoning, there could never 12 exist an assessment for purely political purposes because it is 13 quite likely that some small portion of such a fund would, from a 14 practical perspective, always be chargeable. It would follow 15 that all post-notice, post-objection period assessments would be 16 considered dues and fees increases, covered by an already issued 17 Hudson notice. Unions would then be permitted to pass any such 18 future assessments as long as those funds built in the most 19 minute chargeable cushion, a cushion that is, from a practical 20 perspective, almost inevitable. Without repercussion, Unions 21 would be free to, even if inadvertently, trample on the First 22 Amendment rights of dissenters.

23 This strategy must fail. Even if every cent of the 24 assessment was not intended to be used for entirely political 25 purposes, it is clear that the Union's intent was to depart 26 drastically from its typical spending regime and to focus on 27 activities that were political or ideological in nature.

28 ///

1 This shift represents a material difference from that 2 contemplated under the standard dues structure to which the 2005
3 Hudson Notice was directed and rendered the Hudson notice
4 obsolete as to that Assessment.

5 Defendants adamantly object to being required to provide a 6 second Hudson notice. Since they are required to base such 7 notices on audited figures, they argue that it is impossible to 8 provide an "advance" notice. However, advance notice is exactly 9 what Hudson requires. It is an advance notice provided to 10 nonunion employees so that they may make an informed decision as 11 to whether or not they object to the use of their funds for 12 political or ideological purposes. The Supreme Court's 13 recognition that these notices would necessarily depend on prior 14 years' financials does not change the underlying function of the 15 notice itself.

16 Defendants belabor the Supreme Court's nod to practicality
17 in footnote 18 of the Hudson opinion. The Court there stated, 18 "We continue to recognize that there are practical reasons why 19 '[a]bsolute precision' in the calculation of the charge to 20 nonmembers cannot be 'expected or required.'" Hudson at 307 21 n.18. The Court went on, "Thus, for instance, the Union cannot 22 be faulted for calculating its fee on the basis of its expenses
23 during the preceding year." Id. At no point did the Court state 24 that this procedure was the only constitutionally mandated manner
25 in which to prepare a Hudson notice. The Court simply noted 26 that, in the case of an annual notice, it was understandable that 27 the union relied on the prior year's figures.

28 ///

1 Notably, however, there is at least some nexus between using 2 the whole of the prior year's expenditures as a benchmark for the 3 whole of anticipated current year's expenditures, which could 4 reasonably be expected to remain at a similar level. In that 5 instance, the nonunion employee is being asked to compare one 6 year's apples to the next year's apples. However, in the current 7 case, the nonunion employees were never given any opportunity to 8 make such an informed decision as to the Assessment. Rather, 9 after implementing the increase, the Union took the position that 10 nonunion employees had already been given an opportunity to make 11 an informed decision as to the Assessment by means of the 2005 12 Hudson Notice. The Union now turns a blind eye to the 13 inconsistency inherent in asking nonunion employees to compare 14 apples, in the form of the prior year's financials, to oranges, 15 in the form of a new Assessment, an Assessment which was not to 16 be utilized for Union operations, but was instead earmarked for 17 discrete political purposes.

18 Defendants' argument that it must rely on audited financial 19 figures which the Assessment has not yet generated is inapposite.
20 Defendants are correct that the Hudson Court stated "adequate 21 disclosure surely would include...verification by an independent 22 auditor." Hudson at 307 n.18. However, the Ninth Circuit has 23 held that "while a formal audit is not always required, the union 24 must provide a statement of its chargeable and nonchargeable 25 expenses, together with an independent verification that the 26 expenses were actually incurred." Harik v. Cal. Teachers Ass'n, 27 326 F.3d 1042, 1046 (9th Cir. 2003).

28 ///

1 "This passage certainly indicates that, although the Union must 2 provide a breakdown between chargeable and nonchargeable 3 expenses, the audit does not verify that the allocation is 4 correct, but that the expenses were indeed spent the way the 5 Union claims." Cummings v. Connell, 316 F.3d 886, 892 (9th Cir.
6 2003) (rejecting the claim that an allocation audit was 7 required). "What is required is a real independent verification
8 of the financial data in question to make sure that expenditures
9 are being made the way the union says they are." Id. (quoting 10 Prescott v. County of El Dorado, 177 F.3d 1102, 1107 (9th Cir.
11 1999), vacated and remanded on other grounds, 528 U.S. 1111 12 (2000), reinstated in relevant part, 204 F.3d 984 (9th Cir.
13 2000)).

14 Defendants had audited financials from the prior year from 15 which they were able to construct the requisite 2005 Hudson 16 Notice. Those expenditures were not necessarily relevant, 17 however, to allocations within the subsequent Assessment. It was 18 within the Union's purview to determine which additional 19 expenditures were chargeable or nonchargeable. See Harik at 20 1046. It follows that it was up to the Union to determine the 21 relevant major categories of expenses as well. The auditor 22 merely "make[s] sure that expenditures are being made the way the 23 union says they are." Prescott at 1107. Therefore, the Union 24 could have looked at the purpose of the Assessment and determined 25 which of its major categories of expenses should be allocated to 26 that fund. Those figures had been audited based on the prior 27 year's information, as is acceptable under Hudson. The burden is 28 on the Union to put forth the TYPE of relevant expenditures.

1 The Court's methodology provides the means by which the Union
2 could have met that burden by issuing a second, verified Hudson
3 notice, specific to the Assessment, without estimating exact 4 future revenue expenditures.

5 Ultimately, the crux of the analysis is "adequate 6 information." The Supreme Court determined that, under the 7 Hudson facts, use of prior year's financials was "adequate." See 8 Hudson at 307 n.18. The Union's use of its financials was not 9 adequate here because the categories of expenses included in the 10 2005 Hudson Notice were not relevant to the purposes for which 11 the funds in the Assessment were to be used. The Assessment, 12 even according to the Union's own statements, was always intended 13 to provide a stream of funds whose use departed drastically from 14 standard Union spending.

15 A contrary decision from the one reached today would allow 16 unions to run roughshod over dissenting nonmembers by imposing a 17 post-objection period, "almost" purely political assessment, 18 holding the funds hostage, and then using those funds, even if 19 temporarily, for impermissible purposes.

20 An advance reduction by the amount of the fair share 21 percentage in the 2005 Hudson Notice does not alter this 22 analysis. As the Supreme Court has emphasized, "[A] remedy which 23 merely offers dissenters the possibility of a rebate does not 24 avoid the risk that dissenters' funds may be used temporarily for 25 an improper purpose." Hudson at 305.

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 "A forced exaction followed by a rebate equal to the amount 2 improperly expended is thus not a permissible response to the 3 nonunion employees' objections." Hudson at 305-306.<sup>8</sup>

4 Regardless of whether couched in terms of the Constitution
5 or in terms of common sense, the 2005 Hudson Notice could not 6 possibly have supplied the requisite information with which 7 nonmembers could make an informed choice of whether or not to 8 object to the Assessment. Accordingly, this Court finds that the 9 2005 Hudson Notice was inadequate to provide a basis for the 10 Union's Assessment.

11 12 B. New Notice is the Appropriate Remedy to Address the 13 Harm to Plaintiffs as a Result of the Inadequate 2005
14 Hudson Notice

15 "An inadequate notice gives fee payers insufficient 16 information with which to decide whether or not to object to 17 paying portions of the fee that are unrelated to representational 18 activities. A new, conforming notice, with a renewed opportunity 19 for fee payers to object to paying nonchargeable amounts, 20 addresses that harm.

22 <sup>8</sup> Defendants' attempt to dismiss constitutional concerns 23 because everything worked out in favor of the nonmember employees 24 after the fact is irrelevant. The question is not whether, in 25 retrospect, nonunion employees actually benefitted by being 26 "undercharged." Rather, the question is whether those employees
27 were provided the constitutionally required minimum information
28 to make a forward-looking decision. They were not. Additionally, Defendants' argument hinges on the fact that the chargeable funds expended overall increased. However, the chargeable expenditures attributed to the Assessment were 27.35% in 2005 and 18.77% in 2006, much lower than those attributed to the standard Union dues and fees. Union's Opp'n to Pls.' Motion for Summary Judgment, 12:13-15.

1 Following a new, conforming notice, fee payers could object, and 2 objectors would be entitled to a refund of the nonchargeable
3 portion of the fee, with interest." Wagner at 1041. "[B]ecause
4 the injury that fee payers suffer from an inadequate Hudson 5 notice is the lack of an informed opportunity to object, the 6 proper remedy is for the union to issue proper notice and give 7 another opportunity for objection." Id. at 1042 (emphasis in 8 original). These objectors will be entitled to receive a refund, 9 with interest, of the nonchargeable amount.<sup>9</sup> See Id. at 1043.

10
11 C. Summary of Resolution of Plaintiffs' Motion

12
13 The 2005 Hudson Notice, which detailed expenditures
14 regarding all Union activities, not just the limited activities 15 to be covered by the Assessment, could, by no stretch of the 16 imagination, have been applicable to this special fund. A second 17 Hudson notice was required in the case of this Assessment, not 18 because the 2005 Hudson Notice could not conceivably cover any 19 assessment or dues increase, but because the actual notice in 20 this case was inadequate to provide the requisite information 21 regarding the specific Assessment. See Hudson at 307 ("[T]he 22 original information given to the nonunion employees was 23 inadequate.")

24 ///

25 ///

26
27 <sup>9</sup> The Wagner court considered it relevant that there was no 28 evidence presented that the union had acted in bad faith. Id. at 1042. Since the same is true here, the Court need not engage in any further analysis on this point.

1 Defendants essentially rely on the argument that Hudson and 2 its progeny left them a convenient loophole, one which now allows 3 them to subvert the central protections Hudson is meant to 4 provide. However, no self-asserted loophole will allow 5 Defendants to avoid the Constitution. The Hudson Court
6 articulated the minimum protections required under the First 7 Amendment. This Court will not undermine that interpretation by 8 allowing Defendants to hollowly assert that they adhered to 9 constitutional requirements by issuing a standard Hudson notice, 10 which, in actuality, failed to provide any "adequate explanation" 11 as to how the subsequent Assessment would be used.

12 Accordingly, Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment is 13 granted. The Union shall issue a proper Hudson notice as to the 14 Assessment, with a renewed opportunity for nonmembers to object 15 to paying the nonchargeable portion of the fee. The Union is 16 ordered to issue nonmembers who, pursuant to this proper notice, 17 object to the Assessment a refund, with interest, of that amount.
18 Wagner at 1043.

19 20 II. DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY ADJUDICATION

21 A. Nonobjectors Did Not Consent to the Assessment by 22 Failing to Object to 2005 Hudson Notice

23 Defendants argue that nonobjectors have no claim against the 24 Union for the wrongful use of funds exacted from their paychecks 25 under the 2005 Hudson Notice since they did not object to that 26 Notice. This is basically the same claim, though differently 27 dressed, that Defendants' raised in their already denied first 28 motion for summary judgment.

1 This Court need not address Defendants' argument that "silence 2 equals consent" under the Constitution. In order for the 3 nonunion employees' failure to object to have any legal 4 significance, the 2005 Hudson Notice must have been valid and 5 sufficient to cover the Assessment. See Wagner at 1043 ("Th[e] 6 principle [that plaintiffs burden of objection attaches only on 7 provision of proper notice] makes sense, for it would be unfair 8 to require a nonmember to object when the nonmember has, as a 9 matter of law, not been adequately informed of the facts.").
10 Because this Court holds that the 2005 Hudson Notice was not 11 adequate as to the Assessment, nonobjectors could not have 12 legally consented to the relevant subsequent deductions.
13 Defendants' Motion for Summary Adjudication as to the class of 14 nonobjectors is denied.

15
16 B. Plaintiffs' Claims Are Limited to the Time Period
17 Encompassed by the Union's 2005 Hudson Notice

18 Defendants also argue that any alleged wrong that occurred 19 due to the lack of an adequate Hudson notice was remedied when 20 the Union issued its subsequent Hudson notice in June of 2006.
21 See Wagner and discussion, supra.

22 Since the proper remedy for the current wrong is a new 23 Hudson notice and since Plaintiffs have not challenged the 24 adequacy of the Union's 2006 or 2007 Hudson notices, this Court 25 agrees with Defendants that the only time period relevant to the 26 current dispute is September 2005 through June 2006 (inclusive).
27 Hence, Defendants' Motion for Summary Adjudication as to the 28 relevant time period is granted.

CONCLUSION

3 Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment is GRANTED.
4 Defendants are ordered to issue, within sixty (60) days following 5 the date of this Order, a proper Hudson notice as to the 2005 6 Assessment, offering nonmembers a forty-five (45) day period in 7 which to object. The Union shall thereafter issue to those 8 nonmembers who object to this new Hudson notice a refund of the 9 nonchargeable portion of the Assessment. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 10 1961, the Union shall further issue to those nonmembers all 11 interest accruing from the date(s) upon which nonchargeable 12 deductions were taken.

13 Defendants' Motion for Summary Adjudication as to the 14 nonobjector class is DENIED and Defendants' Motion asking the 15 Court to limit the relevant time period to September 2005 through 16 June 2006 (inclusive) is GRANTED.

17 The Clerk of the Court is directed to enter judgment in 18 favor of Plaintiffs and close the file.

19 IT IS SO ORDERED.
