

- EEOC v. Management Recruiters International, Inc., a major sexual harassment case, was resolved through a settlement agreement providing $1.3 million in compensatory damages to a class of 18 individuals as well as a letter of apology from the company's president to each class member. The suit alleged that the defendant had created a sexually hostile work environment for its female employees and retaliated against those who complained about the harassment.