

- After a receptionist complained that a female coworker was sexually harassing her, the company allegedly retaliated against her by disciplining her, eliminating her job duties and transferring her to another work area. EEOC v. Central Bucks Specialists. After she filed a complaint with the EEOC, she was fired. The receptionist received $50,000 in a settlement with the employer.