

-

- In a case involving a unique kind of work, the Commission alleged that an entertainment company providing trick horse riders, subjected female riders to a hostile work environment and paid them less than the male trick riders. The company agreed to pay the women $135,000 in monetary relief. EEOC v. Dixie Stampede Dinner Attractions, Inc.