

X Priority
X Send
X Cisd
X Enter
— JS-5/JS-6
— JS-2/JS-3

FILED
NOV - 2 2004
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SOUTHERN DIVISION AT SANTA ANA
DEPUTY

THIS CONSTITUTES NOTICE OF ENTRY
AS REQUIRED BY FRP, RULE 77 (d).

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SOUTHERN DIVISION

FRED PIERCE et al.,) Case No. SA CV 01-981-GLT (MLGx)
)
Plaintiffs,)
)
vs.) ORDER GRANTING IN PART ) DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY ) JUDGMENT
)
15 COUNTY OF ORANGE et al.)
)
16)
)
17 Defendants.)

ENTERED - SOUTHERN DIVISION
CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT
NOV - 3 2004
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
BY DEPUTY

Defendant's motion for summary judgment is GRANTED IN PART.

I. BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs, former pretrial detainees in the Orange County jail, brought class-action claims under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against Defendants Orange County and Sheriff Michael Carona alleging violations of Plaintiffs' civil rights, rights established under Stewart v. Gates, 450 F. Supp. 583 (C.D. Cal. 1978), constitutional rights, and the Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA"). Plaintiffs alleged Defendants, in violation of Stewart, impermissibly denied to Plaintiffs seats in holding cells, outdoor exercise, dayroom and telephone access, fifteen-minute meal breaks, visitation, and also violated the ADA and the United

DOCKETED ON 11/3/04
NOV - 3 2004

452

1 States and California constitutions.

2 On March 1, 2004, the Court granted in part and denied in part
3 Defendants' motion for summary judgment. The remaining Plaintiffs are 4 Timothy Conn, Laurie Ellerston, Fred Pierce, and Fermin Valenzuela. The 5 County of Orange is the only remaining Defendant. Defendant now moves
6 for summary judgment on Plaintiffs' remaining eleven claims, which are 7 as follows: (1) Section 1983/Fourteenth Amendment, (2) Section
8 1983/violations of Stewart, (3) Section 1983/violations of Stewart and 9 California law, (4) Section 1983/equal protection, (5) California Civil 10 Code section 52.1, (6) California Constitution, (7) ADA, (8) mandatory
11 duties under Title 15, (9) California Civil Code section 54.1, (10)
12 mandatory duties under the California Constitution, and (11) injunctive 13 and declaratory relief.

14 II. DISCUSSION

15 Summary judgment is proper if "there is no genuine issue as to any 16 material fact and . . . the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a 17 matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c).

18 A. Mootness

19 Defendant argues the case is moot because, with the exception of 20 Plaintiff Conn, Plaintiffs no longer seek damages (Ct.'s Scheduling 21 Order & Order for Consolidation & Review Mar. 11, 2004 at 2); instead, 22 they seek injunctive and declaratory relief already in effect under 23 Stewart. Under Cornblum v. Board of Supervisors, 110 Cal. App. 3d 976,
24 981-82 (Ct. App. 1980), Defendant argues this case is almost entirely 25 moot.

26 Plaintiffs assert no case, including Cornblum, holds a preexisting
27 injunction moots a later request for injunctive relief; in any event,
28 Plaintiffs argue they seek to modify and expand Stewart. Plaintiffs

1 also contend Defendant's conduct fits within the "capable of repetition
2 yet evading review" exception to mootness. Last, assuming injunctive
3 relief is moot, Plaintiffs argue declaratory relief is not.

4 1. Cornblum

5 Cornblum is on point and persuasive. In Cornblum, taxpayers
6 brought an action to enjoin "cruel and inhuman conditions" in a county
7 jail. Id. at 978. Earlier, detainees of the county jail had filed a 8 class action, alleging violation of their constitutional rights. Id. at 9 981. Pending appeal in the Cornblum case, a judgment was entered in 10 the class action to compel the county to fix the conditions the 11 taxpayers sought to enjoin in the Cornblum case. Id. at 981-82. In 12 light of this development, the court concluded, "To authorize a 13 taxpayer's suit by these plaintiffs when another suit . . . has in fact 14 ripened into judgment . . . is to invite a duplicative, unnecessary
15 lawsuit. Later events have mooted plaintiffs' lawsuit." Id. at 982.

16 Given recent developments, the scope of this case has narrowed:
17 Plaintiffs no longer seek damages; they seek only injunctive and 18 declaratory relief, with one exception. The injunctive and declaratory
19 relief Plaintiffs seek, however, is addressed by Stewart. Like 20 Cornblum, where the preexisting injunction fixed the conditions the 21 taxpayers' sought to fix, here Stewart provides the relief Plaintiffs 22 seek.

23 2. Modification or Expansion of the Stewart Injunction

24 Plaintiffs argue the Stewart injunction does not provide the 25 relief they seek, which is modification or expansion of the Stewart
26 injunction. There are two problems with Plaintiffs' argument.

27 First, Defendant correctly contends the proper vehicle to modify 28 or expand an injunction is not to file an entirely new lawsuit, but to

1 file an application in the underlying Stewart case. See, e.g., Sys.
2 Fed'n No. 91 v. Wright, 364 U.S. 642, 647-48 (1961); Riccard v.
3 Prudential Ins. Co., 307 F.3d 1277, 1298 (11th Cir. 2002); A&M Records,
4 Inc. v. Napster, Inc., 284 F.3d 1091, 1098-99 (9th Cir. 2002).

5 Second, the Fifth Amended Complaint does not mention equitable
6 relief beyond Stewart, and Plaintiffs presented this for the first time
7 in their Opposition. In Armani v. Maxim Healthcare Services, Inc., 53
8 F. Supp. 2d 1120, 1132-33 (D. Colo. 1999), the first time plaintiff 9 mentioned a particular "basis for relief was one year after filing his 10 Complaint in his . . . Opposition to [defendant's] Motion for Summary
11 Judgment." The court did "not allow him to amend his Complaint," id.
12 at 1132, and did not consider the relief. Id. at 1133.

13 Here, Plaintiffs may not raise their request to modify or expand
14 Stewart in their Pierce case opposition to Defendant's motion for 15 summary judgment.

16 3. Capable of Repetition Yet Evading Review

17 An exception to mootness is for "wrongs capable of repetition yet 18 evading review." To meet this exception, "(1) the duration of the 19 challenged action [must be] too short to allow full litigation before it 20 ceases, and (2) there [must be] a reasonable expectation that plaintiffs 21 will be subjected to it again." Greenpeace Action v. Franklin, 14 F.3d
22 1324, 1329 (9th Cir. 1993).

23 As to the first element, the injury must be of a type inherently 24 limited in duration and must be likely to always become moot before
25 litigation is completed. Carroll v. President & Comm'rs of Princess
26 Anne, 393 U.S. 175, 178-80 (1968) (holding a ten-day restraining order 27 on a protest demonstration was deemed capable of repetition and always 28 likely to evade review because litigation never would be completed

1 before the ten days expired).

2 Plaintiffs argue, "For many of the class members, the duration
3 component is satisfied, since they will be released or moved to another 4 area of the jail, after being subjected to loss of rights guaranteed by 5 Stewart, without allowing sufficient time for appellate or Supreme Court
6 review." (Pls.' Opp'n at 26-27.) Relying on Gerstein v. Pugh, 420
7 U.S. 103, 111 n.11 (1975), Plaintiffs argue the second element is also 8 met.

9 The duration component is met for "many" of the class members,
10 indicating the injury is not "inherently limited," as required by 11 Carroll. The presence of detainees who remain for an extended period 12 of time likely ensures review cannot be evaded.

13 To meet the "capable of repetition" element, Plaintiffs must show
14 there is a "reasonable expectation that the same complaining party 15 would be subjected to the same action again." Weinstein v. Bradford, 16 423 U.S. 147, 149 (1975). Here, Plaintiffs cite only Gerstein, which 17 notes, "Pretrial detention is by nature temporary [But the] 18 individual could nonetheless suffer repeated deprivations" Id.
19 This is not enough under Weinstein, especially because Plaintiffs are no
20 longer incarcerated in the Orange County jail. The exception has not 21 been met.

22 4. Whether Declaratory Relief is Separately Available

23 Plaintiffs argue their request for declaratory relief is not moot,
24 even assuming their request for injunctive relief is. This argument,
25 based on Biodiversity Legal Foundation v. Badgley, 309 F.3d 1166, 1174-
26 75 (9th Cir. 2002), depends on whether the facts alleged show "there is 27 a substantial controversy, between parties having adverse legal 28 interests, of sufficient immediacy and reality to warrant the issuance

1 of a declaratory judgment." In other words, to resolve this argument, 2 the Court must evaluate the merits of Plaintiffs' claims. Given the 3 evidence and the Court's rulings, the Court concludes declaratory relief
4 is still available. Tinoqui-Chalola Council v. United States Dep't of 5 Energy, 232 F.3d 1300, 1303 (9th Cir. 2000) ("The party asserting
6 mootness has the heavy burden of establishing that there is no effective 7 relief remaining for a court to provide.").

8 Defendant's motion for summary judgment based on mootness is 9 GRANTED, except declaratory relief is available to Plaintiffs.

10 B. First to Third Claims and Sixth and Tenth Claims

11 "[T]he California^{1/} and federal^{2/} due process clauses are co-12 extensive." Cornwell v. Cal. Bd. of Barbering & Cosmetology, 962 F.
13 Supp. 1260, 1274 (S.D. Cal. 1997). The parties agree the same arguments 14 apply under either clause. (Def.'s Mot. Summ. J. at 34; Pls.' Opp'n at 15 35; Def.'s Reply at 25.)

16 Given the Court's March 1, 2004 Order, Plaintiffs are limited to 17 claiming violations of due process. Accordingly, in their sixth and 18 tenth state claims, Plaintiffs contend Defendant violated Article I,
19 section 7 of the California Constitution.

20 Defendant questions whether Plaintiffs can claim due process
21 violations under the California Constitution. Plaintiffs argue Katzberg
22 v. Regents of University of California, 29 Cal. 4th 300, 306-07 (2002), 23 holds an "individual has standing directly to bring an action under the 24 California Constitution," including Article I, section 7. (Pls.' Opp'n 25 at 35.) Defendant, however, contends Katzberg simply does not stand for 26

27 ^{1/} Plaintiffs' sixth and tenth claims.

28 ^{2/} Plaintiffs' first to third claims.

1 this proposition.

2 Plaintiffs' reading of Katzberg is correct. In Katzberg, the 3 court stated, "It is clear [] the due process clause of article I,
4 section 7(a) is self-executing [I]t also is clear . . . this 5 section supports an action, brought by a private plaintiff against a
6 proper defendant, for declaratory relief or for injunction." 29 Cal.
7 4th at 307. In short, Katzberg allows Plaintiffs to assert state due
8 process violations.

9 Plaintiffs' state due process claims are based on whether there 10 was a policy or custom of violating detainees' rights, or whether 11 incidents were random or isolated. Under Section 1983, municipal 12 liability can be imposed only for injuries inflicted pursuant to a
13 widespread and longstanding official government policy or custom, Monell
14 v. N.Y. City Dep't of Soc. Servs., 436 U.S. 658, 694 (1978), including 15 a policy of being deliberately indifferent to the rights of individuals.
16 City of Canton v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 389 (1989).

17 The policy or custom need not be a rule promulgated by a
18 legislative body; a decision by a government agency's authorized 19 decisionmaker may qualify as an official policy. Pembaur v. City of 20 Cincinnati, 475 U.S. 469, 481 (1986) (plurality opinion). As for 21 custom, "proof of random acts or isolated events are insufficient to 22 establish custom." Thompson v. City of L.A., 885 F.2d 1439, 1444 (9th 23 Cir. 1989).

24 1. Dayroom Policy

25 Plaintiffs contend there is evidence of an unconstitutional policy
26 of denying detainees in administrative segregation the minimum two hours 27 of dayroom every day, as required by Stewart. Plaintiffs argue the 28 jail's written policy provides only two hours every other day to

1 detainees in Module J. (Pls.' Evidence Vol. 3 Ex. 9.)

2 On behalf of Defendant, Richard Himmel declares administrative-
3 segregation detainees are "rarely housed in Module J, and make up only 4 approximately 0.014% of the inmates housed in Module J." (Himmel Decl.
5 ¶ 7.) When they are housed in Module J, "they are provided with 6 dayroom access in compliance with the written policies applicable to 7 Administrative Segregation inmates" (Himmel Decl. ¶ 7.)

8 The parties' evidence raises a triable issue. Plaintiffs identify 9 a written policy inconsistent with the Stewart injunction, while 10 Defendant represents the written policy is "trumped" by different 11 written policies applicable to administrative-segregation detainees.
12 Defendant points to no evidence showing its policies "trump"
13 Plaintiffs'.

14 Defendant notes this issue was previously raised in Stewart and 15 adjudicated in its favor; however, the issue was discussed in a 16 contempt proceeding, and Plaintiffs had not supported their claim with 17 admissible evidence, as they now do. A triable issue exists.

18 Viewing the evidence in the light most favorable to Plaintiffs,
19 the Court DENIES Defendant's motion for summary judgment.

20 2. Custom

21 Plaintiffs contend Henry v. County of Shasta, 132 F.3d 512 (9th 22 Cir. 1997), controls. In Henry, the Ninth Circuit held the testimony of 23 three detainees, relying on similar violations by officers in their 24 treatment after they were arrested, raised triable issues as to 25 plaintiff's municipal liability claim. Id. at 518. Here, Plaintiffs 26 argue they have provided ample evidence of custom, exceeding the 27 evidence found adequate in Henry.

28 Defendant argues stating "a particular type of event occurred a

1 certain number of times over a period of time says little if anything
 2 about the existence of a custom." (Def.'s Reply at 7-8.) According to 3 Defendant, context is key. For example, when Plaintiffs contend they 4 were denied fifteen minutes to eat a meal, one must recognize the 5 average daily population of the Orange County jail is 6,000 detainees;
 6 each detainee gets three meals a day, which amounts to 18,000 meals a 7 day; over a one year period, the number of meals is 6,570,000; and 8 because the class period dates back to October 2001, the number against 9 which to compare any allegation of denial of fifteen minutes is 10 19,710,000.

11 a. Outdoor Exercise

12 Under Stewart, pretrial detainees in administrative segregation
 13 are entitled to "rooftop exercise and recreation at least twice each 14 week for a total time of not less than two hours per week." 450 F.
 15 Supp. at 590-91.

16 Stewart is limited to administrative-segregation detainees, who are 17 housed in Modules F-29 or F-30. (Himmel Decl. ¶ 11.) Plaintiff's
 18 reliance on Judd Stephen Gartenberg's and Plaintiff Ellerston's
 19 statements is misplaced, as Mr. Gartenberg does not refer to Modules F-
 20 29 or F-30 in his declaration (Gartenberg Decl. ¶¶ 1-18) and Plaintiff
 21 Ellerston was not classified as an administrative-segregation detainee.

22 Plaintiffs also offer statements by James Earl Weaver, who was 23 placed in administrative segregation. When asked how often he got 24 outdoor exercise, he answered, "Once to twice a week," and "An hour, two 25 hours." (Weaver Dep. at 353.)^{3/}

26
 27 ^{3/}Plaintiff's proposed survey evidence is not probative at 28 this summary judgment stage. It is not a summary of voluminous writings under Federal Rule of Evidence 1006 because

(continued...)

1 Defendant's expert, Peter Morrison, concluded 0.7 percent of 2 administrative-segregation detainees were denied rooftop access without 3 any explanation, and 1.2 percent were denied rooftop access with an 4 "accompanying explanation." (Morrison Decl. ¶ 4.) To show a custom, 5 Monell requires a "permanent and well-settled" practice. 436 U.S. at 6 691.

7 At the hearing on this motion, Plaintiff called the Court's 8 attention to the statements of five other witnesses concerning outdoor 9 exercise. Three of those witnesses are not helpful: there is no showing
10 of being in administrative segregation by Mr. Hopper; Mr. Sherwin states 11 in a single sentence he was denied two hours of weekly outdoor exercise, 12 but no particulars of that denial (when?, how often?, etc.) are given;
13 and Ms. Valenzuela only says, without details, that she was denied 14 rooftop access, and no administrative segregation is shown. However,
15 Mr. Rials says he was in administrative segregation, and was only 16 allowed exercise access twice since July 2003, and then only for 45
17 minutes to an hour. Also, Mr. Valenzuela says between April 2002 and 18 September 2003, while in administrative segregation, he was given less 19 than 2 hours outdoor exercise for 30 to 50 weeks, and no exercise for 20 15 to 20 weeks.

21 On balance, there is a triable issue. Defendant's motion for 22

23 ^{3/}(...continued)

24 admissibility of underlying materials is not shown. It is not 25 state-of-mind evidence under Rule 803(3) because it purports to 26 show facts, not someone's sense impressions. It does not meet 27 the exceptionally-used residual exception of Rule 807 because, as 28 administered, it is not inherently trustworthy. It is not offered as the basis for an expert's opinion, but as direct fact.
Although parts of the survey evidence could be deemed to be declarations like those admissible on summary judgment motions, they have no probative value when the fixed list of usable trial witnesses does not include such witnesses.

1 summary judgment is DENIED on the outdoor exercise issue.

2 b. Dayroom Access

3 Stewart requires two hours per day of dayroom access for 4 administrative-segregation detainees. 450 F. Supp. at 590-91. Again,
5 Plaintiffs' reliance on Mr. Gartenberg's and Plaintiff Ellerston's
6 testimony is misplaced because Mr. Gartenberg's declaration does not 7 discuss dayroom access for administrative-segregation detainees, and 8 Plaintiff Ellerston was not classified as an administrative-segregation 9 detainee.

10 Plaintiffs, however, also offer the declaration of Plaintiff
11 Valenzuela, who stated he was denied access to the dayroom "about 300 12 days" from April 2001 to November 2002. (Valenzuela Dep. at 88.) In 13 2002, excluding the times Plaintiff Valenzuela was denied access to the 14 dayroom for disciplinary reasons, he was denied access about fifty to 15 sixty times on an arbitrary basis. (Valenzuela Dep. at 116.) Plaintiff
16 Valenzuela adds he observed other detainees denied dayroom access.
17 (Valenzuela Dep. at 229.)

18 In viewing the evidence in the light most favorable to Plaintiffs,
19 drawing all justifiable inferences in their favor, there is a triable
20 issue. Plaintiffs' evidence shows Plaintiff Valenzuela was arbitrarily 21 denied dayroom access for sixty days out of the year. The fact he 22 observed others denied access suggests they were also arbitrarily 23 excluded, and it might be inferred others he did not witness were 24 denied.

25 While Mr. Weaver testified he was never denied two hours of 26 dayroom access (McCown Decl. ¶ 8a & Exs. X, Y), at summary judgment, 27 this implies his situation was unique and not indicative of the general
28 practice of which Plaintiff Valenzuela testified.

1 Plaintiffs have shown enough evidence to raise a triable issue,
2 and the Court DENIES Defendant's motion for summary judgment on the 3 dayroom access issue.

4 c. Fifteen Minutes to Eat

5 Under Stewart, all pretrial detainees must have "not less than 6 fifteen minutes at the meal table." 450 F. Supp. at 588.

7 Plaintiffs show the following evidence: Plaintiff Ellerston was 8 given about eight minutes to eat on a daily basis for two or three 9 months (Ellerston Dep. at 265-67, 281-84, 307-09); Plaintiff Pierce had 10 less than ten minutes to eat three or four times per week (Pierce Dep.
11 at 261-62, 268-69, 283, 296, 365, 384); and Mayling Kao reviewed five 12 videotapes of chow-hall sessions, which revealed "90 percent of the 13 time, detainees had less than fifteen minutes to eat their meals." (Kao
14 Decl. ¶ 19.)

15 Defendant, however, disputes Ms. Kao's declaration, stating most 16 of the sessions lasted fifteen minutes or longer. (Himmel Decl. ¶¶ 8-17 10.) A factual dispute on meal time exists. The Court DENIES 18 Defendant's motion for summary judgment on the meal time issue.

19 d. Chapel and Visitation Rights

20 Under Stewart, the Orange County jail may not arbitrarily deprive 21 detainees in administrative segregation of visitation, and is required
22 to permit detainees to receive visitors at least twice a week. 450 F.
23 Supp. at 590-91. Also, the Orange County jail must permit detainees in 24 administrative segregation to attend "regularly scheduled religious 25 services of their own selection once each week or, alternatively, to 26 make individual visits to the chapel once each week for not more than 27 twenty minutes." Id. at 591.

28 Plaintiffs contend there was a custom of denying visitation rights

1 to detainees. Plaintiff Valenzuela testified he was denied visits with 2 his wife on at least ten occasions during the summer of 2002 and
3 December 2002. (Valenzuela Dep. at 118-19, 121-23.)

4 Plaintiffs' evidence does not raise a triable issue on visitation.
5 Plaintiff Valenzuela's testimony is the only admissible evidence
6 provided in support of the existence of a custom denying visitation
7 rights. Ten occasions of denied visitation in one year from only one 8 detainee cannot, as a matter of law, constitute a "permanent and well-
9 settled" custom. Monell, 436 U.S. at 691. On visitation, Defendant's
10 motion is GRANTED.

11 As to chapel, Plaintiff Valenzuela has never been permitted to see 12 a chaplain or attend chapel service (Valenzuela Dep. at 132-33, 135), 13 and deputies told him administrative segregation detainees are not 14 permitted to attend chapel. (Valenzuela Dep. at 133; see also Taylor 15 Decl. ¶ 2-3 (stating that, during her incarceration since 2000 in 16 administrative segregation, she has never been permitted to attend
17 chapel)).^{4/} Mr. Weaver, however, testified he received visits from a
18 Catholic priest at his request. (Pls.' Evidence Vol. 2 at 467-68.)

19 Plaintiffs have raised a triable issue. At least two detainees
20 testified they have never been permitted to attend chapel, and one was 21 told administrative-segregation detainees cannot attend. Mr. Weaver
22 does not state he attended chapel; he only received visits from a
23 priest. These facts suggest the existence of a custom denying detainees 24 the right to attend "regularly scheduled religious services of their own 25 selection." Stewart, 450 F. Supp. at 591. On the chapel issue, the 26

27 ^{4/} The Court does not consider Plaintiff Ellerston's 28 testimony regarding access to a chaplain or chapel because she was not an administrative-segregation detainee.

1 Court DENIES Defendant's motion for summary judgment.

2 e. Adequate Seats in Holding Cells

3 Stewart requires a seat for all detainees in holding cells either
4 going to or returning from court. Id. at 590-91.

5 Plaintiffs rely on testimony from Plaintiffs Ellerston and 6 Valenzuela, as well as Dominic Bagarozzi, Keith Engel, James Shipp, and 7 Guadalupe Valverde; however, all of this testimony concerns seating in 8 holding cells during the booking process, not when detainees are going 9 to or returning from court. Consequently, the Court does not consider 10 this testimony.

11 Douglas Hopper's and Mahogany Ota's declarations are relevant.
12 Mr. Hopper states that, as to "inmates on their way to and from court, 13 I have personally seen inmates packed in the holding cells -- the 14 inmates are forced to stand, lie and sit on the floors." (Hopper Decl.
15 ¶ 7.) Ms. Ota adds, "when I am placed in a holding cell to await the 16 bus to go to court or when I return from court and wait to be placed in 17 a cell, I have had to either stand or sit on the floor. This has 18 happened at least 50% (fifty) percent of the time." (Ota Decl. ¶ 5.)

19 This evidence raises a triable issue. Together, this evidence
20 indicates multiple detainees have had to go without seating almost half 21 the time they are going to or returning from court, which may violate 22 Stewart and may suggest the existence of a general practice by 23 Defendant.

24 Here, the Court DENIES Defendant's motion for summary judgment on 25 the seating issue.

26 C. Fourth Claim

27 Plaintiffs bring an equal protection claim. "Although disabled
28 people do not constitute a suspect class, the Equal Protection Clause

1 prohibits irrational and invidious discrimination against them." Dare
2 v. California, 191 F.3d 1167, 1174 (9th Cir. 1999).

3 Plaintiffs contend Defendant's treatment of detainees is irrational
4 and invidious. In making this contention in the context of equal
5 protection, Plaintiffs compare disabled detainees to nondisabled
6 detainees. Plaintiffs assert, for example, "the jail has a practice of 7 . . . denying detainees in wheelchairs the same access to the dayroom
8 as [detainees] with no disabilities [and] refuse[s] to give disabled
9 detainees the same access to the roof as non-disabled detainees."
10 (Pls.' Opp'n at 30.)

11 Plaintiffs' contention misses the mark. To establish a claim
12 under the Equal Protection Clause, Plaintiffs must show Defendant did 13 not treat them "in the same manner as other similarly situated 14 prisoners." City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Ctr., 473 U.S. 432, 439
15 (1985). A disabled and nondisabled detainee are not similarly situated
16 for equal-protection purposes. Crayton v. Terhune, No. C 98-4386, 2002
17 WL 31093590, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 17, 2002).

18 In Crayton, the court stated, "Crayton fails to show that 19 defendant . . . treated him any differently than other disabled inmates.
20 Accordingly, on these facts, no reasonable jury could conclude that 21 defendant . . . treated Crayton differently than 'similarly situated'
22 inmates." Id. at *3. Because Plaintiffs compare treatment of disabled
23 detainees to nondisabled detainees, this Court GRANTS Defendant's
24 motion for summary judgment on Plaintiffs' equal protection.

25 D. Fifth Claim

26 Plaintiffs argue they were deprived of "the exercise or enjoyment
27 of . . . rights secured by the Constitution" by "threats, intimidation
28 or coercion" in violation of California Civil Code section 52.1.

1 The parties appear to agree there is no evidence of threats,
2 intimidation, or coercion. The issue instead centers on whether 3 evidence of threats, intimidation, or coercion is required under the 4 applicable law.

5 Under section 52.1, if a person "interferes by threats,
6 intimidation, or coercion" with the exercise or enjoyment of rights 7 secured by law, a civil action may be brought.

8 Interpreting section 52.1, the California Supreme Court in Venegas
9 v. County of Los Angeles, 32 Cal. 4th 820 (2004), stated, "Civil Code 10 section 52.1 does not extend to all ordinary tort actions because its 11 provisions are limited to threats, intimidation, or coercion that 12 interfere with a constitutional or statutory right." Id. at 843.
13 Later, the court held, "All we decide here is that, in pursuing relief 14 for [] constitutional violations under section 52.1, plaintiffs need not 15 allege that defendants acted with discriminatory animus or intent, so 16 long as those acts were accompanied by the requisite threats,
17 intimidation, or coercion." Id.

18 Here, there is no evidence of threats, intimidation, or coercion;
19 therefore, as a matter of law, the Court GRANTS Defendant's motion for 20 summary judgment on Plaintiffs' fifth claim.

21 E. Seventh and Ninth Claims

22 The ADA and California Civil Code section 54.1 are coextensive.
23 Daviton v. Columbia/HCA Healthcare Corp., 241 F.3d 1131, 1134 n.4 (9th 24 Cir. 2001). Plaintiff Conn argues he was denied full and equal access
25 to various facilities, programs, and services while housed in Sheltered
26 Living at the Orange County jail, in violation of federal and state law.

27 Here, triable issues of fact exist on whether Defendant complied
28 with federal and state law. After touring the Orange County jail, Peter

1 Robertson concluded a "significant number of existing conditions
2 observed throughout the facility [] limit access to and participation in 3 OC Jail's programs, services and activities by detainees with 4 disabilities." (Robertson Decl. ¶ 10; see also Keeny Decl. ¶¶ 6-13
5 (reporting numerous incidents where Plaintiff Conn was denied access to 6 facilities).) Ron Bihner, however, disagrees. In his declaration, he 7 asserts the jail's facilities, programs, and services are accessible to 8 the disabled. (Bihner Decl. ¶¶ 6-13.)

9 The conflicting declarations are not reconcilable. Triable issues
10 exist. The Court DENIES Defendant's motion for summary judgment on 11 Plaintiffs' seventh and ninth claims.

12 The parties have not sufficiently joined issue in their briefing
13 for the Court to rule whether Conn can also assert claims on behalf of 14 other detainees. See, Laxalt v. McClatchey, 809 F.2d 885, 891 (D.C.
15 Cir. 1987); Hawkins v. Comparet-Cassani, 251 F.3d 1230, 1238 (9th Cir.
16 2001). The parties may take this up by a motion specifically briefing 17 this issue if they wish.

18 F. Eighth Claim

19 Plaintiffs contend they are entitled to relief under California
20 Government Code section 815.6 because Defendant violated mandatory
21 duties imposed by Title 15 of the California Code of Regulations.
22 Section 815.6 states, "Where a public entity is under a mandatory duty 23 imposed by an enactment that is designed to protect against the risk of 24 a particular kind of injury, the public entity is liable . . . unless .
25 . . it exercised reasonable diligence to discharge the duty." The 26 parties first dispute whether Title 15 imposes mandatory duties. The 27 Court finds it does.

28

1 A regulation, like Title 15, may impose mandatory duties. Cal.
2 Gov't Code §§ 810.6, 815.6 (West 2003). Moreover, Title 15 applies to 3 jails. See Cal. Code Regs. tit. 15, § 1010 (2003).

4 Title 15 repeats the word "shall" several times. See, e.g., id. §
5 1053 ("Administrative segregation shall consist of separate and secure 6 housing but shall not involve any other deprivation of privileges than 7 is necessary to obtain the objective of protecting the inmates and 8 staff."). While the word "shall" "does not necessarily create a 9 mandatory duty," County of L.A. v. Superior Court, 102 Cal. App. 4th
10 627, 639 (Ct. App. 2002), it is "explicit and forceful language" akin to 11 mandatory language. See Quackenbush v. Superior Court, 57 Cal. App. 4th
12 660, 663 (Ct. App. 1997). And here, Title 15 itself states the word
13 "shall" is deemed "mandatory." Cal. Code Regs. tit. 15, § 2000(a)(5).

14 Next, the parties dispute whether Title 15 is mandatory for 15 purposes of section 815.6. Defendant argues the word "shall" is not 16 dispositive for purposes of section 815.6. See Sutherland v. City of 17 Forth Bragg, 86 Cal. App. 4th 13, 20 (Ct. App. 2000). In Sutherland, 18 the court stated, "even where language in the predicate enactment
19 appears mandatory, if significant discretion is required to carry out 20 any duty imposed, that duty is not mandatory within the meaning of 21 section 815.6." Id.

22 Defendant contends jail officials have significant discretion in 23 carrying out the day-to-day operations of a county jail, and Title 15
24 recognized this: "Nothing contained herein shall be construed to deny 25 the power of any facility administrator to temporarily suspend any 26 standard or requirement herein prescribed" Cal. Code Regs.
27 tit. 15, § 1012.
28

1 Title 15 sets the floor below which jails cannot fall. Cal. Code
 2 Regs. tit. 15, § 1005 (stating counties cannot adopt standards for 3 correctional facilities below the standards listed in Title 15).
 4 Therefore, jails officials have discretion either to enact stricter
 5 policies or temporarily suspend policies. Whether this constitutes 6 "significant" discretion is a triable issue. The Court DENIES
 7 Defendant's motion for summary judgment on Plaintiffs' eighth claim.^{5/}

8 G. Eleventh Claim

9 Plaintiffs appear to abandon their claim under California Code of 10 Civil Procedure 526a. (Pls.' Opp'n at 35 ("Plaintiffs do not oppose 11 dismissal of the taxpayer claim under C.C.P. § 526a.")) Having 12 reviewed Defendant's argument, the Court GRANTS Defendant's motion for 13 summary judgment on Plaintiffs' eleventh claim.

14 III. DISPOSITION

15 Defendant's motion for summary judgment is GRANTED IN PART.
 16 Defendant's motion for summary judgment based on mootness is GRANTED,
 17 except declaratory relief is available to Plaintiffs. Defendant's
 18 motion for summary judgment on Plaintiffs' first, second, third, sixth,
 19 and tenth claims is GRANTED IN PART. Defendant's motion for summary
 20

21 ^{5/} Assuming Title 15 imposes mandatory duties for purposes
 22 of section 815.6, Defendant contends it has exercised reasonable
 23 diligence to comply with Title 15. As evidence, Defendant refers
 24 to this Court's December 12, 2002 Order, in which the Court
 25 stated, "Defendants . . . produce substantial evidence that Defendants are attempting in good faith to comply with the Court's orders."

26 The Court's statement was based on evidence before it in 27 2002, and it cannot assume this evidence is the same today. (See 28 Pls.' Opp'n at 34 n.25 (asserting Plaintiffs' showing at this stage is "far more extensive".) Based solely on the December 12, 2002 Order, the Court cannot find Defendant exercised reasonable diligence.

1 judgment on Plaintiffs' fourth and fifth claims is GRANTED.
2 Defendant's motion for summary judgment on Plaintiffs' seventh, eighth,
3 and ninth claims is DENIED.. Defendant's motion for summary judgment on 4 Plaintiffs' eleventh claim is GRANTED.

5

6 DATED: November 2, 2004

7

8

9 GAY L. TAYLOR
UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28