11/04/2014	305	ORDER: Plaintiffs oral motion to enter detainee declarations into evidence is granted. Plaintiffs oral motion to designate portions of Mr. Arces deposition for use in its case in chief is granted. Defendants to submit cross–designations, if any, by 11/10/2014.The Court may consider hearsay in deciding whether to grant a preliminary injunction. SEC v. Cherif, 993 F.2d 403, 412 n.8 (7th Cir. 1991). The Court has considerable discretion to admit hearsay evidence at a preliminary injunction hearing. See Goodman v. Ill. Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation, 430 F.3d 432, 438–39 (7th Cir. 2005). Therefore, Plaintiffs are permitted to introduce

		declarations of detainees in support of their motion for a preliminary injunction. Recognizing that the declarations are unsworn and not given under penalty of perjury, the Court will give appropriate weight to the declarations. Plaintiffs are permitted to introduce designated portions of Mr. Arce deposition as part of their case in chief over Defendants objection. Defendants are permitted to cross-designate portions of the deposition for introduction. Cross-designations, if any, shall be filed by 11/10/2014. 11/13/2014	312	ORDER: The Plaintiffs' objection to the introduction of the monitor's reports into evidence on the basis of hearsay is overruled. The reports are not hearsay because they are not being admitted for the truth of the matters asserted as to the conditions in Cook County Jail. Instead, they are relevant to the issue of whether or not there is a remedy that is currently in place. The reports are relevant since they represent whether there is adequate equitable relief in effect independent of any preliminary injunction in this case. See Judge v. Quinn, 612 F.3d 537, 546 (7th Cir. 2010) ("To justify a preliminary injunction, the plaintiffs must show... that they are likely to suffer irreparable injury without the injunction[.]"). The Court recognizes the potential prejudice to the Plaintiffs given their inability to cross-examine the reports' author and will weigh the

		reports accordingly. Moreover, to the extent that the reports constitute hearsay, the Court has considerable discretion to rely on hearsay in deciding whether to grant a preliminary injunction. See Goodman v. Ill. Dept. of Financial and Professional Regulation , 430 F.3d 432, 438–39 (7th Cir. 2005); SEC v. Cherif , 993 F.2d 403, 412 n.8 (7th Cir. 1991). 09/20/2016	426	MINUTE entry before the Honorable Virginia M. Kendall:The Court is unable to accommodate a full week of trial on the previously scheduled trial date and therefore intends to start the trial during the week of September 26, 2016. The parties shall meet and confer and choose a date that week for the commencement of the trial. Five trial days are available from September 26–30, and one trial day on October 3. Therefore, the parties should choose a start date that provides them with the appropriate number of trial days. Finally, no motion to change the trial date will be entertained absent extraordinary circumstances. The case is three years old and has had over one year of discovery in its current stream-lined, single plaintiff form (but two years of extension litigation and discovery preceded the single plaintiff case), the trial date was originally scheduled for September and was moved, and the facts of the case are very narrow and straight-forward. Therefore, the parties should be prepared to proceed during the week of September 26.Mailed notice. (jlj, ) (Entered: 09/20/2016)
