UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ELECTRONIC FRONTIER

v.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE,

Defendant.

Case No. 16-cv-02041-HSG

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT’S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT AND DENYING PLAINTIFF’S CROSS MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Re: Dkt. Nos. 66, 68

Pending before the court is the motion for partial summary judgment filed by Defendant U.S. Department of Justice, Dkt. No. 66, and the cross-motion for partial summary judgment filed by Plaintiff Electronic Frontier Foundation (“EFF”), Dkt. No. 68. For the following reasons, the Court GRANTS Defendant’s motion and DENIES Plaintiff’s motion.

I. BACKGROUND

On April 19, 2016, EFF filed this action under the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”), 5 U.S.C. § 552, seeking release of records concerning applications to the Federal Intelligence Surveillance Court (“FISC”) and related opinions and orders. Dkt. No. 1 (“Compl.”) ¶ 1.

According to the Complaint, FISC reviews applications from the government concerning national security surveillance. Id. ¶ 7. Historically, FISC opinions and appellate decisions by the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court of Review (“FISCR”) were ex parte and classified. Id. ¶ 8. However, the USA FREEDOM Act, which was passed in the wake of the September 11th, 2001 terrorist attacks, required a declassification review of “significant” FISC and FISCR decisions. Id. ¶¶ 9–12. Plaintiff alleges that recently the government has been using court orders to pressure private companies to provide access to encrypted communications, as was allegedly

1 done following the San Bernardino shootings. Id. ¶¶ 14–18. Through this FOIA action, Plaintiff
2 “seeks to inform the public about the extent to which the government has used FISA and the FISC 3 to compel private companies into providing assistance that would undermine the safety and 4 security of millions of people who rely on software and the devices that run them, such as the 5 iPhone, every day.” Id. ¶ 19.

6 Currently at issue is one FOIA request: a request for all decisions, orders, or opinions 7 issued by FISC or FISCR between 1978 and June 1, 2015, that include a significant construction 8 or interpretation of any law, including a significant construction of a “specific selection term” 9 under the USA FREEDOM Act. See id. ¶ 31; Dkt. No. 68 at 3. The government identified 10 seventy-nine (79) responsive FISC opinions, and eventually agreed to release seventy-three (73) of 11 those opinions, in full or in part. Dkt. No. 68 at 3–4. The remaining six opinions are the subject 12 of these cross motions for summary judgment. The government contends that these six documents 13 are exempted from disclosure under FOIA Exemptions 1, 3, 6, 7(A), 7(C), and 7(E). Dkt. No. 66
14 at 1. Plaintiff argues that the USA FREEDOM Act requires the government to conduct a 15 declassification review and either declassify and release the six opinions, or create an unclassified 16 summary of each of the opinions. Dkt. No. 68 at 2. Plaintiff contends that because the 17 government has not complied with the declassification requirements, it has failed to meet its 18 burden under FOIA to withhold the six documents. Id. at 7. Plaintiff articulates a single claim for 19 relief: violation of FOIA for wrongful withholding of the six undisclosed agency records. Compl.
20 ¶¶ 38-41.

21 II. SUMMARY JUDGMENT STANDARD

22 Summary judgment is proper when a “movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to 23 any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a).
24 A fact is “material” if it “might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law.” Anderson 25 v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986). A dispute is “genuine” if there is evidence in the 26 record sufficient for a reasonable trier of fact to decide in favor of the nonmoving party. Id. The 27 Court views the inferences reasonably drawn from the materials in the record in the light most 28 favorable to the nonmoving party, Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S.

1 574, 587–88 (1986), and “may not weigh the evidence or make credibility determinations,” 2 Freeman v. Arpaio, 125 F.3d 732, 735 (9th Cir. 1997), overruled on other grounds by Shakur v.
3 Schriro, 514 F.3d 878, 884–85 (9th Cir. 2008). If a court finds that there is no genuine dispute of 4 material fact as to only a single claim or defense or as to part of a claim or defense, it may enter 5 partial summary judgment. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a).

6 With respect to summary judgment procedure, the moving party bears both the ultimate 7 burden of persuasion and the initial burden of producing those portions of the pleadings, 8 discovery, and affidavits that show the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp.
9 v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). Where the moving party will not bear the burden of proof on 10 an issue at trial, it “must either produce evidence negating an essential element of the nonmoving 11 party’s claim or defense or show that the nonmoving party does not have enough evidence of an 12 essential element to carry its ultimate burden of persuasion at trial.” Nissan Fire & Marine Ins.
13 Co. v. Fritz Cos., 210 F.3d 1099, 1102 (9th Cir. 2000). Where the moving party will bear the 14 burden of proof on an issue at trial, it must also show that no reasonable trier of fact could not find 15 in its favor. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 325. In either case, the movant “may not require the 16 nonmoving party to produce evidence supporting its claim or defense simply by saying that the 17 nonmoving party has no such evidence.” Nissan Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 210 F.3d at 1105. “If a 18 moving party fails to carry its initial burden of production, the nonmoving party has no obligation 19 to produce anything, even if the nonmoving party would have the ultimate burden of persuasion at 20 trial.” Id. at 1102–03.

21 “If, however, a moving party carries its burden of production, the nonmoving party must 22 produce evidence to support its claim or defense.” Id. at 1103. In doing so, the nonmoving party 23 “must do more than simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts.” 24 Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co., 475 U.S. at 586. A nonmoving party must also “identify with 25 reasonable particularity the evidence that precludes summary judgment.” Keenan v. Allan, 91 26 F.3d 1275, 1279 (9th Cir. 1996). If a nonmoving party fails to produce evidence that supports its 27 claim or defense, courts enter summary judgment in favor of the movant. Celotex Corp., 477 U.S.
28 at 323.

A. FOIA

FOIA, codified as 5 U.S.C. § 552, “was enacted to facilitate public access to Government documents.” Lahr v. Nat’l Transp. Safety Bd., 569 F.3d 964, 973 (9th Cir. 2009) (quotations omitted). The goal of FOIA is to “ensure an informed citizenry, vital to the functioning of a democratic society, needed to check against corruption and to hold the governors accountable to the governed.” Id. (quotations omitted). At the same time, FOIA contemplates that the government may have legitimate reasons for withholding some information from the public. Id. Accordingly, FOIA “requires federal agencies to make Government records available to the public, subject to nine exemptions for specific categories of material.” Milner v. Dep’t of Navy, 562 U.S. 562, 564 (2011). These nine FOIA exemptions are “explicitly made exclusive and must be narrowly construed.” Id. at 565 (quotation omitted).

A defendant agency “must show that its search for responsive records was adequate, that any claimed exemptions actually apply, and that any reasonably segregable, non-exempt parts of records have been disclosed after redaction of exempt information.” Light v. Dep’t of Justice, 968 F. Supp. 2d 11, 23 (D.D.C. 2013); accord Lahr, 569 F.3d at 973; Pac. Fisheries, Inc. v. United States, 539 F.3d 1143, 1148 (9th Cir. 2008). The agency bears the burden to show that it has complied with its obligations under FOIA. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(B). “[G]overnment agencies seeking to withhold documents requested under the FOIA have been required to supply the opposing party and the court with a ‘Vaughn index,’ identifying each document withheld, the statutory exemption claimed, and a particularized explanation of how disclosure of the particular document would damage the interest protected by the claimed exemption. The purpose of the index is to afford the FOIA requester a meaningful opportunity to contest, and the district court an adequate foundation to review, the soundness of the withholding.” Wiener v. F.B.I., 943 F.2d 972, 977–78 (9th Cir. 1991) (citations and quotations omitted).

FOIA cases are typically decided on motions for summary judgment because the facts are rarely in dispute. See Minier v. Cent. Intelligence Agency, 88 F.3d 796, 800 (9th Cir. 1996). On a motion for summary judgment, a district court analyzes the withholding of documents de novo. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(B). FOIA permits a district court to enjoin a defendant agency from

1 withholding agency records or to order a defendant agency to produce any improperly withheld 2 records. Id.

3 B. USA FREEDOM Act

4 The USA FREEDOM Act was signed into law on June 2, 2015. The purpose of the USA 5 FREEDOM Act was to reform the data collection process under existing statutory schemes and 6 provide greater oversight provisions to protect the privacy and civil liberties of individuals. H.R.
7 Rep. No. 114-109, at 6 (2015). Relevant here, Section 402 of the USA FREEDOM Act (“Section 8 402”), codified as 50 U.S.C.A. § 1872, requires conditional declassification of certain FISC and 9 FISCER opinions:

10 Declassification Required.--Subject to subsection (b), the Director of 11 National Intelligence, in consultation with the Attorney General, shall 12 conduct a declassification review of each decision, order, or opinion 13 issued by the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court or the Foreign 14 Intelligence Surveillance Court of Review (as defined in section 15 601(e)) that includes a significant construction or interpretation of any 16 provision of law, including any novel or significant construction or 17 interpretation of the term 'specific selection term', and, consistent 18 with that review, make publicly available to the greatest extent 19 practicable each such decision, order, or opinion.

20 Pub. L. No 114-23, § 402(a) (2015); 50 U.S.C. § 1872(a).

21 Section 402 further provides for the production of an unclassified summary of certain 22 opinions that cannot be released:

23 The Director of National Intelligence, in consultation with the 24 Attorney General, may waive the requirement to declassify and make 25 publicly available a particular decision, order, or opinion under 26 subsection (a), if--

27 (1) the Director of National Intelligence, in consultation with 28 the Attorney General, determines that a waiver of such requirement is necessary to protect the national security of the United States or properly classified intelligence sources or methods; and

(2) the Director of National Intelligence makes publicly available an unclassified statement prepared by the Attorney General, in consultation with the Director of National Intelligence--

(A) summarizing the significant construction or interpretation of any provision of law, which shall include, to the extent consistent with national security, a description of the context in which the matter arises and any significant construction or interpretation of any statute, constitutional provision, or other legal authority relied on by the decision; and

(B) that specifies that the statement has been prepared by the Attorney General and constitutes no part of the opinion of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court or the Foreign Intelligence

Surveillance Court of Review.

Pub. L. No. 114-23, § 402(c) (2015); 50 U.S.C. § 1872(c).

III. DISCUSSION

The pivotal issue here is whether Section 402 bars Defendant from relying on FOIA Exemptions 1 and 3 to withhold the six FISC opinions, because, as Plaintiff alleges, there is no evidence that a declassification review was conducted, as required by Section 402. Dkt. No. 68 at 7. Put another way, the Court must decide whether it can essentially enforce the declassification mandate under Section 402 through a FOIA action. This may include determining whether the USA FREEDOM Act applies retroactively. See Dkt. No. 66 at 19–25; Dkt. No. 68 at 11–14. If Section 402 does not prevent the government from relying on the FOIA exemptions, then the inquiry is whether the government properly withheld the six opinions and whether the Vaughn index it provided was sufficient to satisfy FOIA requirements.

A. FOIA AND THE FREEDOM ACT

The parties agree that Section 402 creates no private cause of action to enforce the declassification of FISC opinions. See Dkt. No. 66 at 16; Dkt. No. 70 at 4. Plaintiff contends that because the government did not submit evidence that it has performed the declassification review required by Section 402, then either (1) the six opinions are improperly classified and not subject to withholding under FOIA Exemptions 1 or 3, or (2) the Vaughn index provided by the government is inadequate to serve as a “declassification summary,” because it does not provide the information required in Section 402. See 50 U.S.C.A. § 1872(c)(2)(A) (stating that summary “shall include, to the extent consistent with national security, a description of the context in which the matter arises and any significant construction or interpretation of any statute, constitutional provision, or other legal authority relied on by the decision.”).

Although Plaintiff presents a creative argument, the Court agrees with Defendant that Plaintiff cannot enforce Section 402 through this FOIA action. See Dkt. No. 69 at 2. While courts have not addressed this specific issue, the Court is persuaded by the decisions of courts interpreting FOIA’s relationship with other disclosure statutes. See, e.g., Minier, 88 F.3d at 799.

In Minier, plaintiff sought disclosure from the Central Intelligence Agency (“CIA”) under 1 FOIA of information regarding a potential CIA agent’s alleged involvement in President John F.

2 Kennedy’s assassination. 88 F.3d at 799. The CIA denied plaintiff’s request under FOIA 3 Exemptions 1 and 3. Id. at 800. The plaintiff did not contest the applicability of the exemptions, 4 but instead attempted to circumvent them by arguing that the President John F. Kennedy 5 Assassination Records Collection Extension Act of 1994 (the “JFK Act”) mandated disclosure of 6 the requested information under FOIA. Id. at 802. The JFK Act provides that “all Government 7 records concerning the assassination of President John F. Kennedy should carry a presumption of 8 immediate disclosure.” Id. (citing JFK Act § 2(a)(2)). Congress’s enactment of the JFK Act in 9 part was a response to FOIA “prevent[ing] the timely disclosure of records relating to the 10 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.” Id. (citing JFK Act § 2(a)(5)).

11 The Ninth Circuit rejected the plaintiff’s argument (and noted that the D.C. Circuit and 12 First Circuit rejected similar arguments), reasoning that the JFK Act explicitly provided that 13 “[n]othing in this Act shall be construed to eliminate or limit any right to file requests ... or seek 14 judicial review of the decisions pursuant to [FOIA].” Id. (citing JFK Act § 11(b)) (brackets in 15 original). “Had Congress intended the JFK Act to alter the procedure for reviewing FOIA 16 requests, presumably it would have expressly said so.” Id.; see also Assassination Archives and 17 Research Center v. Department of Justice, 43 F.3d 1542, 1544 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (“There is no 18 evidence that Congress intended that the JFK Act standards be applied to FOIA review of 19 documents involving the Kennedy assassination.”). Therefore, even though it was “undoubtedly 20 true that the JFK Act was motivated by less than adequate FOIA responses to Kennedy 21 assassination record requests,” the purpose was to require agencies to release information relating 22 to the Kennedy assassination, not to override the ability of the government to claim proper FOIA 23 exemptions. Minier, 88 F.3d at 802; see also Assassination Archives, 43 F.3d at 1544 (“Congress
24 evidently hoped that prompt administrative application of the Act’s broader criteria for release 25 would moot considerable FOIA litigation and would benefit those FOIA requesters who had long 26 sought access to assassination records.”).

27 While the USA FREEDOM Act does not explicitly refer to FOIA, the JFK Act is similar in 28 that it mandates disclosure of records that the FOIA exemptions may protect from disclosure. See

1 JFK Act § 2(a)(2) (requiring disclosure of records concerning the assassination of President John 2 F. Kennedy); 50 U.S.C.A. § 1872(a) (requiring disclosure of FISC opinions that are declassified).
3 Both statutes also have their own mechanism for review: under the JFK Act, the Assassination 4 Records Review Board evaluates the documents to determine whether they qualify as 5 assassination records, see Assassination Archives, 43 F.3d at 1543, and under the USA 6 FREEDOM Act, the Director of National Intelligence, in consultation with the Attorney General, 7 conducts a declassification review to determine if FISC documents were properly classified. 50 8 U.S.C. § 1872. Absent clear evidence that Congress intended Section 402 to be applied when 9 reviewing FOIA exemptions, the Court will not impute such an intent to hybridize two statutory 10 schemes. See Assassination Archives, 43 F.3d at 1544 (“We thus find no statutory warrant for 11 creating a private right of action to enforce the JFK Act, either directly by implying such a cause 12 of action, or through the subterfuge of judicially hybridizing the two acts.”). The purpose of 13 Section 402 was to allow for more transparency of FISC and FISCER opinions by requiring the 14 Director of National Intelligence and the Attorney General to release information that they 15 determined were not classified, not to override “the ability of the government to claim proper 16 FOIA exemptions.” See Minier, 88 F.3d at 802

17 The Court is also persuaded by Defendant’s argument that Plaintiff’s theory would 18 require the Court to mandate a remedy that lies outside of FOIA. Dkt. No. 69 at 5. Although 19 Plaintiff contends it is only requesting that the Court “interpret Section 402, not enforce it,” Dkt.
20 No. 70 at 3, Plaintiff plainly seeks to enforce Section 402’s requirements. If the Court finds that 21 the USA FREEDOM Act imposes additional requirements that Defendant failed to satisfy when 22 claiming FOIA Exemptions 1 and 3, then according to Plaintiff, Defendant must either release the 23 opinions, or include unclassified summaries as part of its Vaughn Index to reasonably justify 24 withholding them. Dkt. No. 70 at 7. Assuming there is no dispute as to whether these six 25 opinions were properly classified, Plaintiff would have the Defendant provide the unclassified 26 summaries as part of its Vaughn index. Dkt. No. 68 at 17. But the content of the unclassified 27 summaries is different than what is required under FOIA. Under FOIA, a Vaughn index requires 28 the government to “identify[] each document withheld, the statutory exemption claimed, and a

1 particularized explanation of how disclosure of the particular document would damage the interest 2 protected by the claimed exemption.” See Freedom of the Press Found. v. United States Dep’t of 3 Justice, 241 F. Supp. 3d 986, 996–97 (N.D. Cal. 2017) (quotations omitted). The unclassified 4 summaries, by contrast, require a statement by the Attorney General that summarizes the actual 5 construction or interpretation of any law and a description of the context, which are not required 6 under FOIA. See 50 U.S.C. § 1872(c). The Court agrees with Defendant that using FOIA to 7 enforce Section 402 would require the Court to impose remedies outside of FOIA’s requirements.
8 Kissinger v. Reporters Comm. for Freedom of the Press, 445 U.S. 136, 152 (“The [FOIA] Act 9 does not obligate agencies to create or retain documents; it only obligates them to provide access 10 to those which it in fact has created and retained.”).

11 Plaintiff relies on two cases for its proposition that the Court may interpret the USA 12 FREEDOM Act to determine whether information is properly withheld under FOIA. See Dkt. No.
13 68 at 8 (citing Am. Civil Liberties Union v. U.S. Dep’t of Def., 628 F.3d 612 (D.C. Cir. 2011) and 14 Long v. U.S. I.R.S., 742 F.2d 1173 (9th Cir. 1984)). Both cases involve interpretation of a 15 statutory or executive order authority proffered by the government as justification for FOIA 16 withholding. These cases are distinguishable from this action. In Long, the statute at issue, section 17 6103 of the Economic Recovery Tax Act (“ERTA”), was a nondisclosure statute amended for the 18 specific purpose of targeting two previous FOIA cases that sought disclosure of the same 19 documents. 742 F.2d at 1176 (“It is clear from the legislative history of the amendment that 20 Congress was targeting these [two previous FOIA cases].”). The Ninth Circuit held that section 21 6103 qualified as an exemption statute under FOIA Exemption 3, because Exemption 3 was 22 “designed to give effect to just such explicit nondisclosure statutes as section 6103.” Id. at 1178.
23 The Long court also found it persuasive that section 6110, another section in the ERTA, had its 24 own set of procedures for disclosure requests, indicating that Congress intended section 6110 to be 25 excluded from FOIA. Id. Section 6110 was, like the JFK Act and Section 402, a disclosure 26 provision rather than a nondisclosure provision. See 26 U.S.C. § 6110(a) (“Except as otherwise 27 provided in this section, the text of any written determination and any background file document 28 relating to such written determination shall be open to public inspection at such place as the

1 Secretary may by regulations prescribe.”). The Long court found that the absence of similar 2 procedures in section 6103 reflected Congress’s intent that section 6103 would fall within the 3 FOIA regime. 742 F.2d at 1178. In contrast, this action concerns the opposite situation: Plaintiff 4 seeks the disclosure of documents under Section 402 despite FOIA exemptions protecting them 5 from disclosure. The Court finds that Section 402 is more similar to the disclosure statute of 6 section 6110 of ERTA than to section 6103.¹

7 Accordingly, the Court finds that it does not have the authority to engraft Section 402’s 8 declassification mandate in evaluating whether Defendant has properly asserted FOIA exemptions.
 9 As such, the Court does not need to address the issue of whether Section 402 applies 10 retroactively.²

11 B. FOIA EXEMPTIONS

12 Having reached the conclusion that Section 402 does not impose additional requirements 13 in a FOIA action, the Court now turns to whether the government properly withheld the six 14 documents under FOIA exemptions. To properly withhold the documents, the government bears 15 the burden of showing that “its search for responsive records was adequate, that any claimed 16 exemptions actually apply, and that any reasonably segregable, non-exempt parts of records have 17 been disclosed after redaction of exempt information.” Light, 968 F. Supp. 2d 11 at 23. Plaintiff 18 does not challenge the adequacy of the government’s search, but does dispute whether the 19 government has demonstrated the latter two requirements. See Dkt. No. 66 at 4.

20 “FOIA’s strong presumption in favor of disclosure places the burden on the government to 21 show that an exemption properly applies to the records it seeks to withhold.” Hamdan v. U.S.
 22 Dep’t of Justice, 797 F.3d 759, 772 (9th Cir. 2015). When a government agency seeks to withhold 24 ¹ ACLU is similarly distinguishable. In ACLU, the D.C. Circuit held that it was proper for the 25 government to interpret executive orders to determine the classification of certain documents, 26 since that is exactly what FOIA Exemption 1 requires the government to do. 628 F.3d at 619–25; 27 see 5 U.S.C. § 522(b)(1) (preventing disclosure of documents “specifically authorized under 28 criteria established by an Executive order to be kept secret”).

² Although the Court need not address this issue, the Court notes that a district court in the District of Columbia has held that Section 402 does not apply retroactively. Elec. Privacy Info. Ctr. v.
Dep’t of Justice, 296 F. Supp. 3d 109, 127 (D.D.C. 2017) (“What is more, the FREEDOM ACT was enacted in June 2015—well after the reports at issue here were created—and there is nothing to indicate that Congress intended the statute to apply retroactively to prior FISC decisions.”)

1 documents under FOIA exemptions, courts have required the agency “to supply the opposing 2 party and the court with a Vaughn index, identifying each document withheld, the statutory 3 exemption claimed, and a particularized explanation of how disclosure of the particular document 4 would damage the interest protected by the claimed exemption.” Wiener, 943 F.2d at 977. The 5 purpose of a Vaughn index and any accompanying affidavits is to “afford the FOIA requester a 6 meaningful opportunity to contest, and the district court an adequate foundation to review, the 7 soundness of the withholding,” and thus partially restore the adversary process to judicial review 8 of the agency’s decision. Id. at 977–78. “Specificity is the defining requirement of the Vaughn 9 index.” Id. at 979.

10 “Where the government invokes FOIA exemptions in cases involving national security 11 issues, [courts] are required to accord substantial weight to the agency’s affidavits.” Hamdan, 797 12 F.3d at 769 (quotations omitted). A court must be mindful of its “limited institutional expertise on 13 intelligence matters, as compared with the executive branch.” Id. at 770. However, the affidavits 14 still “must describe the justifications for nondisclosure with reasonably specific detail, 15 demonstrate that the information withheld logically falls within the claimed exemptions, and show 16 that the justifications are not controverted by contrary evidence in the record or by evidence of 17 agency bad faith.” Id. at 769 (quotations omitted). “[A]n agency’s justification for invoking a 18 FOIA exemption is sufficient if it appears logical or plausible.” Id. at 774 (quotations omitted).
19 “If the affidavits contain reasonably detailed descriptions of the documents and allege facts 20 sufficient to establish an exemption, the district court need look no further.” Lane v. Dep’t of 21 Interior, 523 F.3d 1128, 1135–36 (9th Cir. 2008) (quotations omitted).

22 Here, Defendant is withholding the following six documents in their entirety under the 23 following FOIA exemptions:

Doc. #	Document Type	Exemption
1	FISC Supplemental Order	1, 3, 6, 7(A), 7(C), 7(E)
2	FISC Primary Order	1, 3, 6
3	FISC Amendment to Primary Order	1, 3, 6
4	FISC Primary Order	1, 3, 6
5	FISC Supplemental Opinion	1, 3, 6
6	FISC Order	1, 3

1 Dkt. No. 66 at 4. Plaintiff does not challenge the applicability of FOIA Exemption 6 and 7(C), 2 and thus only challenges the applicability of FOIA Exemptions 1, 3, 7(A), and 7(E). Id. The main 3 thrust of Plaintiff’s arguments regarding Exemptions 1 and 3 is that Defendant did not comply 4 with the USA FREEDOM Act, the same contention that the Court rejected above. See Dkt. No.
 5 68 at 15 (“The government cannot show that the Six Opinions have been properly classified to 6 Exemption 1’s standard because they have not demonstrated that they have complied with USA 7 FREEDOM Act’s declassification review requirements.”); 16 (“With respect to [Exemption 3 8 statutes,] USA FREEDOM, however, not only authorizes the Director of National Intelligence to 9 disclose the records at issue here, but requires him to disclose them ‘to the greatest extent 10 practicable’ or to certify that they cannot be disclosed and to create a declassified summary of 11 them.”) The Court now addresses whether Defendant properly withheld the six documents under 12 the FOIA exemptions.

13 i. Exemption 1 – Classified Information

14 Defendant withheld six documents in full, consisting of 46 pages total, under Exemption 1 15 as containing classified information in accordance with Executive Order 13526 § 1.1(a) and 1.2(a).
 16 Dkt. No. 66-1, Ex. A (“Gaviria Decl.”) ¶¶ 20–23.³ Specifically, these documents fall under one or 17 more of the classification categories of “intelligence activities,” “intelligence sources or methods,” 18 “foreign relations or foreign activities of the United States, including confidential sources,” and 19 “the capabilities of systems [] relating to national security.” Id. ¶ 23.

20 Exemption 1 protects from disclosure documents that are “specifically authorized under 21 criteria established by an Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or 22 foreign policy and [] are in fact properly classified pursuant to such Executive order.” 5 U.S.C.
 23 § 552(b)(1). Executive Order 13526 permits an agency to classify information as national security 24 information if:

- 25 (1) an original classification authority is classifying the information;

26 _____
 27 ³ All references to the “Gaviria Decl.” or “Gaviria Declaration” are to the Declaration of Patricia 28 Gaviria, Director of Information Management Division, Office of the Director of National Intelligence, attached as Exhibit A to Defendant’s motion for partial summary judgment, filed on July 26, 2018. See Dkt. No. 66-1.

- 1 (2) the information is owned by, produced by or for, or is under the control of the United States Government;
- 2 (3) the information falls within one or more of the categories of information listed in section 1.4 of [Executive Order 13526]: and
- 3 (4) the original classification authority determines that the unauthorized disclosures of the information reasonably could be 4 expected to result in damage to the national security, which includes defense against transnational terrorism, and the original classification 5 authority is able to identify or describe the damage.

6 Exec. Order 13526 § 1.1(a). Executive Order 13526 § 1.2(a) categorizes classified information into one of the following three levels:

- 7
- 8 (1) “Top Secret” shall be applied to information, the unauthorized disclosure of which reasonably could be expected to cause exceptionally grave damage to the national security that the original 9 classification authority is able to identify or describe.
- 10 (2) “Secret” shall be applied to information, the unauthorized disclosure of which reasonably could be expected to cause serious 11 damage to the national security that the original classification authority is able to identify or describe.
- 12 (3) “Confidential” shall be applied to information, the unauthorized disclosure of which reasonably could be expected to cause damage to 13 the national security that the original classification authority is able to identify or describe.

14 Exec. Order 13526 § 1.2(a). All the information withheld has been classified as SECRET and 15 TOP SECRET under Executive Order 13526 § 1.2(a). Gaviria Decl. ¶¶ 24–47.

16 The Court finds that the government has carried its burden to demonstrate that it properly 17 classified the six opinions under Exemption 1. The Gaviria Declaration describes in detail the 18 categories of information in the six documents and how disclosure of the material could cause 19 damage to national security. Disclosure could reveal critical information about the intelligence 20 community, including its targets, methods, limitations, resources, and sources. Id. ¶¶ 24–47. Ms.
21 Gaviria attests that the withheld documents identify, or tend to reveal the identities of, targets from 22 which communications were collected or targeted under FISA. Id. ¶ 27. Disclosure of these 23 identities would alert these targets to take countermeasures to avoid surveillance and could also 24 provide adversaries with valuable insight into the intelligence community’s methods. Id. ¶¶ 27– 25 28. Ms. Gaviria elaborates that the documents also include information that contain the specific 26 type of communication and data collected by the intelligence community, its methods, and its 27 limitations, disclosure of which would neutralize the intelligence community’s core mission by 28 allowing adversaries to identify and counteract those methods. Id. ¶¶ 30–39. The six documents

1 also contain identities of entities that aid the intelligence community under FISA orders; if 2 disclosed, adversaries could avoid detection and the intelligence community could lose 3 information crucial to the national security and defense of the United States. Id. ¶¶ 40–44.
 4 Finally, the withheld information includes docket numbers and dates, disclosure of which would 5 allow adversaries to deduce when collection may or may not be occurring. Id. ¶¶ 45–47. The 6 Gaviria Declaration concludes that the national security of the United States could be exposed to 7 grave damage should the above information be disclosed. Id. ¶¶ 27–47.

8 The Gaviria Declaration provides sufficient detail regarding the withheld information to 9 make the Exemption 1 classification plausible. See Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 770. It does not attempt 10 to categorize distinct information into a single general justification, but gives thorough 11 explanations demonstrating how national security could be compromised if the information is 12 disclosed. Recognizing the Court's “limited institutional expertise on intelligence matters,” see 13 Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 770, the Court accords substantial weight to Ms. Gaviria’s representation 14 that “disclosure of this information could reasonably be expected to cause serious damage, and in 15 some instances, exceptionally grave damage to the national security of the United States.” See 16 Gaviria Decl. ¶ 30. In the area of national security, “it is conceivable that the mere explanation of 17 why information must be withheld can convey valuable information to a foreign intelligence 18 agency.” See Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 775. Therefore, the Court finds that Defendant properly 19 withheld information under Exemption 1.

20 ii. Exemption 3 – Information Protected by Statute

21 Defendant contends that the same six documents withheld in full are properly withheld 22 under Exemption 3. Exemption 3 protects information:

23 specifically exempted from disclosure by statute ... if that statute 24 (A)(i) requires that the matters be withheld from the public in such a 25 manner as to leave no discretion on the issue; or (ii) establishes 26 particular criteria for withholding or refer to particular types of matters to be withheld; and (B) if enacted after the date of enactment of the OPEN FOIA Act of 2009, specifically cites to the paragraph.

27 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(3): Berman v. C.I.A., 501 F.3d 1136, 1140 (9th Cir. 2007). In determining 28 whether information has been properly withheld under Exemption 3, the Court asks “whether the 1 statute identified by the agency is a statute of exemption within the meaning of Exemption 3,” and 2 “whether the withheld records satisfy the criteria of the exemption statute.” Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 3 776.

4 According to Defendant, the government properly withheld the six documents under two 5 statutes: (1) Section 102A(i)(1) of the National Security Agency (“NSA”) Act of 1947, codified as 6 50 U.S.C. § 3024(i)(1), and (2) Section 6 of the NSA Act of 1959, codified as 50 U.S.C. § 3605.⁴
 7 Dkt. No. 66 at 10–11. Section 102A(i)(1) of the NSA Act of 1947 requires the Director of 8 National Intelligence to “protect intelligence sources and methods from unauthorized disclosure.” 9 50 U.S.C. § 3024(i)(1). Section 6 of the NSA Act of 1959 states that “nothing in this chapter or 10 any other law [] shall be construed to require the disclosure of the organization or any function of 11 the National Security Agency, or any information with respect to the activities thereof.” 50 U.S.C.
 12 § 3605.

13 The Court is similarly satisfied that the withheld records would disclose intelligence 14 sources, methods, and information about the function and activities of the NSA. The detail 15 provided under Exemption 1 demonstrates that the government also properly withheld the six 16 opinions under Exemption 3. Because each of the categories of information described in 17 Exemption 1 relates to NSA’s intelligence gathering activities, that information falls within 18 Section 102A(i)(1) and Section 6 of the NSA Acts and are properly withheld under Exemption 3.⁵

19 iii. Segregability

20 FOIA requires that “[a]ny reasonably segregable portion of a record shall be provided to 21 any person requesting such record after deletion of the portions which are exempt under this 22 subsection.” 5 U.S.C. § 552(b). “The burden is on the agency to establish that all reasonably 23 segregable portions of a document have been segregated and disclosed.” Pac. Fisheries, 539 F.3d 24

 26 ⁴ Plaintiff does not contest that either of these laws is a statute of exemption within the meaning of Exemption 3, but rather alleges that the USA FREEDOM Act controls and mandates disclosure.
 Dkt. No. 68 at 16. For the reasons already discussed, the Court disagrees.

27 ⁵ The Court need not address the applicability of Exemptions 7(A) and 7(E), because it has found 28 that Defendant properly withheld the six documents in full under Exemptions 1 and 3. Plaintiff’s cursory briefing also suggests that the applicability of these exemptions is not a pivotal issue here.
See Dkt. No. 68 at 17 n.8.

1 at 1148. Nevertheless, the agency is also “entitled to a presumption that [it] complied with the 2 obligation to disclose reasonably segregable material.” Sussman v. U.S. Marshals Serv., 494 F.3d 3 1106, 1117 (D.C. Cir. 2007). Similarly, the Court “may rely on an agency’s declaration in making 4 its segregability determination. Agency affidavits that are sufficiently detailed are presumed to be 5 made in good faith and may be taken at face value.” Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 779. The Court “need 6 not conduct a page-by-page review of an agency’s work.” Id.

7 The Court finds that Defendant has met its burden through its tailored explanations of the 8 withheld documents. The Gaviria Declaration states that these six documents were “reviewed by 9 multiple agencies initially as part of either the second or third batch of documents released in this 10 case in September 2017 and January 2018,” demonstrating that Defendant conducted several 11 reviews of the documents in question. Gaviria Decl. ¶ 54. Ms. Gaviria represents that the 12 multiple agencies, in preparing for Defendant’s motion for partial summary judgment, reviewed 13 the documents “line by line,” demonstrating that there was an extensive and thorough review 14 process. Id. ¶ 55. Defendant also provided a description as to why it withheld particular 15 documents and how information could be deduced if certain information was redacted instead of 16 fully withheld. Id. ¶ 56.

17 Plaintiff’s only argument in response is to compare Defendant’s actions here with previous 18 cases that Defendant was involved in. Dkt. No. 68 at 22–23. The Court is not persuaded. For 19 one, the procedural history here indicates that Defendant has gone back to re-evaluate previously 20 withheld FISC opinions and released part of those documents in good faith. Dkt. No. 68 at 3–4.
21 Plaintiff asks the Court to make an inference about Defendant’s current actions based on a 22 different set of circumstances, but Plaintiff’s speculative suggestion is not enough to overcome the 23 presumption of good faith. Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 779. The Court thus finds that Defendant has 24 adequately shown that it “properly withheld and segregated” the documents in question. See 25 Freedom of the Press, 241 F. Supp. 3d at 1004.

26 iv. Vaughn Index

27 In a FOIA action, because only the withholding party will have access to all the facts, 28 district courts have required that the withholding party supply the court and opposing counsel a

1 “Vaughn” index, “identifying each document withheld, the statutory exemption claimed, and a 2 particularized explanation of how disclosure of the particular document would damage the interest
3 protected by the claimed exemptions.” Wiener, 943 F.2d at 977. Defendant submitted a chart 4 listing the six withheld documents with the type of FISC order or opinion, the number of pages, 5 the exemptions, and confirmation that each document was entirely withheld. Dkt. No. 69 at 18.
6 This chart is meant to be read in conjunction with the Gaviria Declaration and the Hardy 7 Declaration.⁶ See Dkt. No. 66-1. Plaintiff contends that Defendant’s Vaughn index is deficient, 8 even apart from Section 402’s requirements. Dkt. No. 68 at 19–20.

9 The Court finds that the Vaughn index is adequate. The substance of the Declarations was 10 detailed and specific, unlike the index that the Ninth Circuit found deficient in Wiener. Compare 11 943 F.2d at 978–79 (finding “boilerplate” explanations and categorical descriptions, such as 12 “Information of this category is either specific in nature or of a unique character, and thereby 13 could lead to the identification of a source,” inadequate for Vaughn index), with Gaviria Decl. ¶ 41 14 (“Confirming or denying a relationship between a specific Intelligence Community element and a 15 specific entity that is required by FISA order to provide assistance to the Government would 16 reveal to foreign adversaries whether or not that Intelligence Community utilizes particular 17 intelligence sources and methods and [] would compromise actual sources and methods.”), and 18 Hardy Decl. ¶ 14 (“I can state that Document 1 contains fairly detailed, non-public descriptions of 19 the specific target of a national security investigation, facilities the target was using, and specific 20 sensitive techniques used by the target ... disclosure of [certain statutory] language would tend to 21 disclose both the type of target subject to the surveillance as well as the nature of the 22 surveillance”). Unlike the affidavits in Wiener, the Gaviria and Hardy Declarations do not include 23 boilerplate or categorical descriptions but instead provide sufficient detail for the Court to 24 adequately review the “soundness of the withholding.” See at 943 F.2d at 977.

27 ⁶ All references to the “Hardy Decl.” or “Hardy Declaration” are to the Declaration of David M.
28 Hardy, Section Chief of the Record/Information Dissemination Section, Information Management Division, attached as Exhibit B to Defendant’s motion for partial summary judgment, filed on July 26, 2018. See Dkt. No. 66-1.

v. In Camera Review

The Court may review documents in camera to determine whether exemptions have been properly asserted. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(B). In camera inspection, however, should “not be resorted to lightly,” Lewis v. IRS, 823 F.2d 375, 378 (9th Cir. 1987), and is “disfavored” where “the government sustains its burden of proof by way of its testimony or affidavits.” Lion Raisins v. Dep’t of Agric., 354 F.3d 1072, 1079 (9th Cir. 2004). “In camera inspection is particularly a last resort in national security situations like this case—a court should not resort to it routinely on the theory that it can’t hurt.” ACLU v. Dep’t of Def., 628 F.3d 612, 626 (D.C. Cir. 2011). The Court finds that in camera review is unnecessary here as Defendant already provided sufficiently detailed factual information in support of its exemptions in the Gaviria and Hardy Declarations. As discussed, Plaintiff has failed to overcome the good faith presumption to which the declarations are entitled. Hamdan, 797 F.3d at 770.

IV. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, Defendant’s motion for partial summary judgment is GRANTED, and Plaintiff’s motion for partial summary judgment is DENIED.

The parties are ORDERED file a short joint statement by April 5, 2019, informing the Court whether any issues remain to be resolved given today’s order and Defendant’s prior agreement to reprocess and release certain documents by August 2018. See Dkt. No. 62 at 2; Dkt. No. 66 at 4. If no dispute remains to be resolved in this Court, the parties should confirm this in their statement. If the parties believe any issues remain, they shall appear for a case management conference on April 9, 2019 at 2:00 p.m. in Oakland, Courtroom 2, 4th Floor to discuss a plan and schedule for promptly resolving any remaining issues.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
