COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF UNDER THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACT, 42 U.S.C. §1983 AND DAMAGES

DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

1 INTRODUCTION

2 1. Plaintiff, Prison Legal News (“PLN”) brings this civil rights action pursuant to 42
3 U.S.C. § 1983 (“Section 1983”) against Defendants to enjoin them from barring the receipt of the 4 publication “Prison Legal News” (“PLN”) and other PLN publications by CDCR prisoner 5 subscribers. Plaintiff alleges that Defendants’ actions violate its rights under the First and 6 Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, and seeks injunctive and declaratory 7 relief pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Plaintiff also seeks damages to be proven at trial as to 8 violations of clearly established rights.

9 JURISDICTION AND VENUE

10 2. This lawsuit is brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. Section 1983 against all Defendants for 11 actions under color of state law in violation of the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the United 12 States Constitution. Jurisdiction of this Court is invoked pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and 28
13 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1343(a)(3), in that this action is brought to redress deprivation, under color of law, 14 of rights secured by the Constitution of the United States. This Court has jurisdiction to grant
15 declaratory relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202, and is empowered to grant injunctive 16 relief pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 65.

17 3. Venue is proper in this judicial district pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) because a 18 substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to Plaintiff’s claims occurred in this district.

19 INTRADISTRICT ASSIGNMENT

20 4. Pursuant to Civil L.R. 3-5, assignment to this division is proper because a substantial 21 part of the events or omissions giving rise to Plaintiff’s claims occurred in the counties served by 22 this division.

23 THE PARTIES

24 5. Plaintiff PRISON LEGAL NEWS (“PLN”) is a non-profit, charitable Washington 25 corporation under IRS Code § 501(c)(3) with its office in Seattle, Washington. PLN publishes 26 “Prison Legal News,” (“PLN”) a monthly journal of prison news, court decisions and other 27 developments affecting the civil and human rights of prisoners. PLN also distributes prisoner-28 oriented books. PLN has approximately 5,000 subscribers in all fifty states and abroad.

1 Approximately eighty (80) percent of PLN subscribers are state and federal prisoners, including
2 many prisoners in the CDCR's custody. CDCR prisoners constitute approximately twenty (20)
3 percent of PLN's prisoner subscribers.

4 6. The Defendants listed below are sued in their official capacities for equitable relief 5 only as to each and every violation of federal rights included in this complaint. Defendants are 6 sued in their individual capacities for damages only with respect only to violations of federal rights

20 management of the CDCR. As to all claims presented herein against him, Defendant TILTON is 21 being sued in his individual capacity for damages associated with clearly established federal rights, 22 and in his official capacity for injunctive and declaratory relief. At all relevant times, Defendant
23 TILTON has acted under color of state law.

24 9. Defendants KINGSTON W. PRUNTY, JR. ("PRUNTY") and STEVE KESSLER 25 ("KESSLER") are the Undersecretaries of the CDCR. Defendants PRUNTY and KESSLER are 21 of state law.

22 FACTS

23 13. Plaintiff publishes a monthly magazine, “Prison Legal News,” and also distributes 24 books and other materials pertaining to the legal rights of prisoners and the conditions affecting 25 them. PLN is comprised of writings from legal scholars, attorneys, inmates and news wire 26 services. Each issue of PLN contains articles on recent court decisions, as well as practical advice 27 for prisoners on how to litigate and otherwise protect their legal rights. PLN includes regular 28 columns designed to assist prisoners who are not represented by counsel, including “Habeas Hints”

1 and “Pro Se Tips and Tactics.” PLN consists of speech on matters of public concern and is thus 2 entitled to the highest degree of protection under the First Amendment.

3 14. PLN has approximately 5,000 subscribers in all fifty states and abroad.
4 Approximately eighty (80) percent of PLN subscribers are state and federal prisoners, including 5 prisoners in the CDCR custody. CDCR prisoners constitute approximately twenty (20) percent of 6 PLN’s prisoner subscribers. The purpose of PLN, as stated in its Articles of Incorporation, Article 7 III, Part 6 is “to educate prisoners and the public about the destructive nature of racism, sexism, 8 and the economic and social costs of prisons to society.”

9 15. PLN contains content that is of particular interest to prisoners who are in disciplinary 10 segregation, including reports of court decisions on the rights of prisoners in disciplinary 11 proceedings. For example, the December 2004 issue of PLN included an article on Piggie v.
12 Cotton, 344 F.3d 674 (7th Cir. 2003), holding that a prisoner facing disciplinary proceedings is 13 entitled to disclosure of exculpatory evidence.

14 16. PLN consists of speech on matters of public concern, and is thus entitled to the 15 highest degree of protection under the First Amendment.

16 17. PLN currently has, and at all relevant times has had, numerous paid subscribers who 17 are prisoners in the custody of the CDCR. By paying for their subscriptions, these prisoners have 18 expressed their desire to receive Plaintiff’s legal journal.

19 18. Until approximately January of 2003, CDCR prisoners who subscribed to PLN or 20 ordered other publications from PLN received those publications without incident.

21 19. In approximately January 2003, Defendants began refusing delivery of PLN and 22 PLN’s publications to inmate subscribers in the custody of CDCR (hereinafter, the “censorship 23 policies”). CDCR institutions invoked censorship policies for a variety of reasons, all of which 24 violate PLN’s Constitutional rights. Several institutions refused to deliver PLN to inmate 25 subscribers because they lacked the appropriate labels or because PLN was not an “approved 26 vendor” of the institutions. Other institutions refused to deliver PLN because the recipients were 27 housed in Reception Centers or Administrative Segregation units. Other institutions refused to 28 deliver hardcover books distributed by PLN due to hardcover bans in individual institutions. Still

1 other institutions refused to allow gift or donated subscriptions to CDCR inmates or refused 2 publications that exceeded two pounds in weight. Other institutions designated books and 3 periodicals as "special purchases" meaning that inmates could order them only on a quarterly basis.
4 Other institutions destroyed standard mail sent by PLN to its subscribers when the mail was not 5 deliverable to the addressee rather than return that mail to PLN or to the Post Office.

6 20. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that at least twenty two (22)
7 CDCR institutions prohibit inmates from possessing, ordering, and/or receiving hardcover 8 publications, although there are obvious less restrictive means to achieve any legitimate 9 penological goal concerning prisoners' receipt or possession of hard cover books.

10 21. There is no limit to how long a CDCR prisoner may be confined in Administrative 11 Segregation ("Ad Seg"). Some CDCR prisoners are confined in Ad Seg for many months or even 12 years. Similarly, prisoners can be housed in reception centers ("RC's") for many months or even 13 years.

14 22. Since the censorship policies were implemented, PLN has received numerous 15 complaints from subscribers whose access to the subscriptions for which they have paid has been 16 blocked, or imminently will be blocked, pursuant to the censorship policies. Some CDCR 17 prisoners have expressed their intention not to subscribe or not to renew their current subscriptions 18 because of the censorship policies. Inmates also refuse to order other publications distributed by 19 PLN because they know that the prisons will ban them pursuant to censorship policies.

20 23. On November 18, 2003, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit
21 upheld the District Court's decision that a vendor label policy at Pelican Bay State Prison 22 ("PBSP") violated prisoners' First Amendment rights. Ashker v. California Department of 23 Corrections, et al. (9th Cir. 2003) 350 F.3d 917. The prison required that books and magazines 24 mailed to the prison have approved vendor labels affixed to them. Due to other protections in 25 place regarding contraband and security, the District Court and Ninth Circuit held that such a 26 policy was not rationally related to the prison's asserted interest in security and issued a permanent 27 injunction prohibiting state officials at PBSP from enforcing the policy. Plaintiff is informed and 28 believes, and thereon alleges, that at least three CDCR institutions still require that PLN books and

1 periodicals be mailed with approved vendor labels affixed to them.

2 24. At various times, PLN and others have contacted the CDCR or particular institutions
3 regarding the unlawful censorship policies. For example, on April 3, 2003, the Prison Law Office
4 wrote a letter to Edward Alameida, the Director of CDCR (then "CDC") at that time. The letter
5 documented the practice by two CDCR institutions of denying books to prisoners housed in Ad
6 Seg units and RC's. For example, California Institution for Men ("CIM") refused to forward a law
7 dictionary and legal research book ordered from PLN to an inmate housed in the reception center 8 segregation unit. CIM staff returned the book to PLN with a notice stating "books not allowed 9 where inmate is housed." Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that at least 10 thirteen (13) CDCR institutions impermissibly prohibit inmates in Ad Seg and/or RC's from 11 possessing, ordering, and/or receiving books, magazines and other publications.

12 25. On March 19, 2004, PLN wrote to Jeanne Woodford, the Director of CDCR at that 13 time. PLN complained that CDCR institutions failed to deliver PLN to inmates housed in Ad Seg 14 and failed to deliver PLN publications because PLN failed to utilize special labels required by the 15 prisons. PLN received only a cursory response to those concerns from a Facility Captain at the 16 Institutions Division.

17 26. On March 8, 2005, PLN wrote a letter to California State Prison, Los Angeles 18 County ("LAC") attempting to get on the "approved vendor" list of that prison so that it could send 19 PLN publications to inmates housed at LAC. LAC never responded to that letter.

20 27. On September 19, 2005, counsel for PLN sent yet another demand letter to CDCR 21 personnel, including Defendants named in this complaint. That letter outlined the various 22 censorship policies at CDCR institutions and demanded that the violations cease.

23 28. Defendants have never provided Plaintiff PLN with notice that its journal or books 24 mailed to its subscribers in the CDCR have been withheld from those subscribers, nor any 25 opportunity to be heard. On information and belief, some issues of PLN that were sent to 26 subscribers in the CDCR have been forwarded to unknown destinations or destroyed by 27 Defendants without any notice to Plaintiff. CDCR institutions do not have uniform, or perhaps 28 any, procedures in place to notify publishers and distributors of the institutions' refusal to deliver

1 publication to prisoners, nor do they have sufficient, or perhaps any, procedures in place that would 2 allow publishers and distributors to appeal such refusals.

3 29. Defendants' vendor approval processes are arbitrary, ill-defined and haphazard.
4 Defendants have not promulgated a standardized means, mechanism or set of criteria for approving 5 book and magazine vendors at CDCR institutions. Many of the individual institutions appear to 6 have no vendor-approval processes at all while others implement unaccountable, discretionary 7 review without discernible guidelines. Where vendor approval procedures exist, there are no 8 uniform, or perhaps any procedures to notify or inform vendors of their requirements, no uniform, 9 or perhaps any procedures to notify or inform vendors of a timeframe within which a decision will 10 be made, and no uniform, or perhaps any procedures to notify or inform vendors how to appeal a 11 denial of approved vendor status. For instance, some CDCR institutions have apparently instituted 12 arbitrary approval processes that must go through prison chaplains with no apparent appeal 13 procedure. Despite many requests by the PLN regarding the vendor-approval processes in 14 individual institutions, Defendants have refused to provide Plaintiff with notice of the vendor-15 approval processes and have failed to implement procedural safeguards regarding approved 16 vendors, including the opportunity to challenge denial of approved vendor status.

17 30. Plaintiff PLN has an interest, protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments, in 18 communicating with CDCR prisoners who have subscribed to its journal. Plaintiff has been 19 harmed and continues to be harmed by Defendants' interference with that communication.
20 Plaintiff has also been harmed and continues to be harmed by the loss of revenue as CDCR 21 prisoners are deterred and prevented from subscribing to PLN.

22 31. Defendants continue to enforce the censorship policies as of the date of this 23 Complaint. Plaintiff PLN is suffering irreparable harm as a result of Defendants' ongoing 24 violations of its Constitutional rights, and therefore Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law. These 25 violations are continuing and will continue until enjoined by this Court.
