JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

ECF CASE

Plaintiffs Sharif Stinson, Mariam Farnum, Charlene Finely, Ryburn Walkes, Jamel Towe, Christian Dudley, Jockey Ferdinand, Gary Shaw and Michael Bennett on be half of themselves and others sim ilarly situated, by their attorn eys, Jon Norinsberg and Cohen & Fitch LLP, complaining of the defendant, respectfully alleges as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. Plaintiffs bring this action on behalf of themselves and others similarly situated seeking class certification compensatory damages, and attorney’s fees pursuant to 4 2 U.S.C. § 1983 and 42 U.S.C. § 1988 for violations of theirs and others similarly situated civil rights, as said rights are secured by said statutes and the Constitutions of the State of New York and the United States.

2. Under a pattern and practice set and enforced by city officials, the New York City Police Department ("NYPD"), and New York City Police Officers stop, search, seize, arrest and issue summonses to individuals without probable cause in order to meet summons quotas, in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

3. To encourage this pattern and practice, the NYPD rewards police officers with more summonses issued and punishes officers with fewer summonses issued, regardless of probable cause, the number of summonses actually filed or the number of summonses that are successfully prosecuted.

4. At least two (2) police officers, P.O. Adrian Schoolcraft and P.O. Adil Polanco, have provided evidence of the aforementioned incentives and pressures to increase the number of summonses issued by NYPD officers in the form of tape recordings of Supervising Officers from the 81st and 41st precincts instructing officers to meet quotas in order to secure their jobs and gain incentives.

5. Specifically, in an interview conducted by Eyewitness News on March 2, 2010, P.O. Polanco provided evidence of the policy of issuing summonses pursuant to a quota regardless of probable cause, the number of summonses actually filed or the number of summonses that are successfully prosecuted.

6. In that interview, P.O. explicitly stated that officers were instructed to issue summonses regardless of whether any crime or violation had occurred but instead in order to meet quotas ("numbers") set forth by NYPD: "EVEN IF THE CRIME IS NOT COMMITTED, THE NUMBER IS STILL THERE."

7. P.O. Polanco further stated that if an officer does not meet the aforementioned quotas for issuing summonses, he or she could receive punishment in the form of losing overtime, having their shifts changed or being denied days off.

8. Further, in that same interview, Eyewitness News provided additional evidence of this policy in the form of tape recordings of commanding and supervising officers pressuring officers to meet their summons quota.

9. Specifically, one commanding officer at the 41st precinct was recorded as stating in sum and substance: "NEXT WEEK YOU COULD BE AT 25 (SUMMONSES) AND 1 (ARREST), YOU COULD BE AT 35 (SUMMONSES) AND 1 (ARREST) AND GUESS WHAT UNTIL YOU DECIDE TO QUIT THIS JOB AND BECOME A PIZZA HUT DELIVERY MAN, THIS IS WHAT YOU'RE GOING TO BE DOING UNTIL THEN."

10. Additionally another supervising officer from the 41st precinct was recorded as stating in sum and substance: "THINGS ARE NOT GOING TO GET ANY BETTER, ITS GOING TO GET A LOT WORSE. IF YOU THINK 1 (ARREST) AND 20 (SUMMONSES) IS BREAKING YOUR BALLS GUESS WHAT YOU ARE GOING TO BE DOING, YOU'RE GOING TO BE DOING A LOT MORE, A LOT MORE THAN WHAT YOU THINK."

11. A separate story conducted by the Village Voice on May 4, 2010 provided additional evidence of this policy of issuing summonses pursuant to a quota requirement regardless of probable cause.

12. In that story, P.O. Schoolcraft provided tape recordings of the 81st Precinct where supervising officers stated in sum and substance: "HOW MANY SUPERSTARS AND HOW MANY LOSERS DO WE HAVE, HOW MANY SUMMONSES DOES THE SQUAD WRITE.

WE NEED MORE ACTIVITY, IF YOUR PRODUCTIVITY FALLS BELOW PAR EITHER YOU OR THE C.O. IS GOING TO HAVE TO ANSWER.”

13. Another supervising officer at the 81st Precinct was recorded as stating in sum and substance, “HE WANTS AT LEAST 3 SEATBELTS (SUMMONSES), 1 CELL PHONE (SUMMONSES) AND 11 OTHERS (SUMMONSES). ON THE AVERAGE WE HAVE ABOUT 9 SUMMONSES WHICH IS NOT BAD BUT HE’S GOT A DIFFERENT NUMBER IN MIND.

14. Moreover, in an attempt to conceal and/or justify this flagrantly unconstitutional practice, defendant PAUL BROWN has classified this quota system as a “PRODUCTIVITY GOAL.”

15. Further evidence of this pattern and practice of NY PD to issue summonses pursuant to an established quota regardless of probable cause was provided in a follow up story conducted by Eyewitness News on May 24, 2010.

16. According to the statistics uncovered in that story, over fifty percent (50%) of all summonses issued in 2008 were dismissed as legally insufficient.

17. Further, according to NYPD Comstat data, in 1994, there were approximately thirty six thousand five hundred and eighty five (36,585) summonses dismissed.

18. According to their data, since that time there has been a five hundred percent (500%) increase in the number of summonses issued.

19. Additionally, the evidence provided by the aforementioned “whistleblowers” leads to the conclusion that this policy, pattern and practice is purposely enforced in neighborhoods and areas which have a high composition of minority residents, which disparately impacts said individuals based on an impermissible classification under the Constitution of the United States.

20. This unconstitutional violation of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment can be inferred from NYPD stop and frisk data as well as the racial composition of all the named plaintiffs in this action (i.e. African American).

21. From the aforementioned evidence it is apparent that these summonses are not issued pursuant to any legitimate basis under the law and instead are issued regardless of probable cause, legal merit or whether a successful prosecution can be had.

22. As a consequence, according to the 2007 Annual Report from the Criminal Court, City of New York, there were approximately six hundred and one thousand four hundred and fifty seven (601,457) summonses filed within New York City.

23. Of the aforementioned summonses issued in 2007, thirty five thousand three hundred and four (35,304) of the summonses were dismissed before even being docketed.

24. In addition, of the remaining summonses that were docketed in 2007, ninety three thousand one hundred and fifty nine (93,159) were dismissed as insufficient as a matter of law before arraignment.

25. Additionally, according to the 2008 Annual Report from the Criminal Court, City of New York, there were approximately five hundred sixty three thousand one hundred and fifty seven (563,157) summonses filed within New York City.

26. Of the aforementioned summonses issued in 2008, thirty seven thousand five hundred and one (37,501) of the summonses were dismissed before even being docketed.

27. In addition, of the remaining summonses that were docketed in 2008, ninety nine thousand three hundred and seventeen (99,317) were dismissed as insufficient as a matter of law before arraignment.

28. Further, according to statistics provided by Eyewitness News, a total of 381,002 summonses, or fifty one percent (51%), of all summonses issued in 2008 were dismissed.

29. Upon information and belief, the aforementioned number of summonses filed in 2007 and 2008 does not account for summonses actually issued by the NYPD that are never filed in any criminal court in New York City.

30. Upon information and belief, the aforementioned number of summonses in 2007 and 2008 that were never docketed and or were dismissed prior to arraignment does not account for the number of summonses that were dismissed at arraignment as being insufficient.

31. At a minimum, according to the data actually known regarding the amount of summonses filed and dismissed in 2007 and 2008, approximately twenty three percent (23%) of the total number of summonses filed were dismissed as legally insufficient.

32. The Annual Report from the Criminal Court, City of New York in 2009 has not been published as of the date of this complaint; however, given the nearly identical statistics from the preceding two years, it is presumed that 2009 will produce similar statistics.

33. The statistical data in connection with the documented evidence of high-ranking officials within the NYPD explicitly instructing officers to adhere to these quotas, is representative of an explicit and/or tacit policy, pattern and practice of issuing summonses regardless of probable cause or any legitimate legal basis for their issuance in order to adhere to summons quotas set out by the NYPD.

34. These unconstitutional and illegal acts degrade, humiliate, and cause harm to their victims. Individuals who are arrested and issued summonses suffer unwarranted deprivation of personal liberty. In many cases they are subjected to the degradation of searches and seizures in plain view of the general public, and, in many cases, handcuffing and prolonged detention within NYPD precincts before being released. They are detained, sometimes for hours or days at a time, in filthy, overcrowded conditions. Then, in most instances are forced to take time from their jobs, families and lives in order to appear in court before the summonses are dismissed.

35. Despite the patently unconstitutional and illegal nature of this conduct and its detrimental effects on the New York City residents whom the laws are supposed to protect, city officials have refused to reform their practices and in fact, as has been documented, continue to instruct NYPD officers to increase this practice. The time has come to rein in this abuse of power and stop these unconstitutional and illegal acts.

JURISDICTION

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

56. Plaintiffs SHARIF STINSON, MARIAM FARNUM, CHARLENE FINLEY, RYBURN WALKES, JAMEL TOWE, CHRISTIAN DUDLEY, JOCELEY FERDINAND, GARY SHAW and MICHAEL BENNETT bring this action as a class action under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2) for violations of their constitutional rights. The Rule (b)(2) Class is comprised of all persons who were or will be wrongfully issued summonses pursuant to a policy pattern and practice of issuing summonses regardless of probable cause or any legal/legitimate basis in order to meet quotas established by the New York City Police Department in violation of their constitutional rights, and accordingly, who are threatened with future unlawful enforcement of this unconstitutional policy. The class is comprised of all persons issued summonses pursuant to this policy who had committed no crime or violation of law and thereafter had their summons dismissed during the fullest period permitted by the applicable statute of limitations.

57. Defendants have acted, or failed to act, on grounds generally applicable to the Rule (b)(2) Class, thereby making appropriate final injunctive relief with respect to the Rule (b)(2) Class as a whole.

58. On information and belief, the Rule (b)(2) class includes hundreds of thousands of members. They are so numerous that joinder of all Class members is impracticable.

59. Plaintiffs SHARIF STINSON, MARIAM FARNUM, CHARLENE FINLEY, RYBURN WALKES, JAMEL TOWE, CHRISTIAN DUDLEY, JOCELEY FERDINAND, GARY SHAW and MICHAEL BENNETT bring this action as a class action under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3) for violations of their constitutional rights. The Rule (b)(3) Class is comprised of all persons on who have been wrongfully issued summonses pursuant to a policy pattern and practice of issuing summonses regardless of probable cause or any legal/legitimate basis in order to meet quotas established by the New York City Police Department in violation of their constitutional rights. The class is comprised of all persons issued summonses pursuant to this policy who had committed no crime or violation of law and thereafter had their summons dismissed during the fullest period permitted by the applicable statute of limitations.

60. All members of the Rule (b)(3) class were injured as a result of defendants conduct.

61. Upon information and belief, the Rule (b)(3) class includes hundreds of thousands of individuals and is so numerous that joinder of all class members is impracticable.

62. The questions of law and fact presented by plaintiffs SHARIF STINSON, MARIAM FARNUM, CHARLENE FINLEY, RYBURN WALKES, JAMEL TOWE, CHRISTIAN DUDLEY, JOCELEY FERDINAND, GARY SHAW and MICHAEL BENNETT are common to other members of the class. Among others, the questions of law and fact common to the class are: (i) that the NYPD had a policy, pattern and practice, explicit and/or tacit, of rewarding officers for issuing more summonses; (ii) that the NYPD had a policy, pattern and practice, explicit and/or tacit, of punishing officers for issuing fewer summons; (iii) that the NYPD had a policy, pattern and practice, explicit or tacit of establishing quotas for the issuance of summonses; (iv) that this policy resulted in the issuance of summonses regardless of probable cause in violation of plaintiffs constitutional rights; (v) that enforcement of this policy knowingly created a disparate impact on minorities in violation of their constitutional rights; and (vi) that the appropriate injunctive and compensatory remedies that will be needed to ensure (a) that this unconstitutional quota system for issuance of summonses regardless of probable cause is terminated in each and every respect and (b) that its harmful effects are nullified.

63. Common issues of law and fact such as those set forth above (and many others) predominate over any individual issues.

64. This unconstitutional policy, pattern and practice has resulted in the wrongful detention, charging, handcuffing, confinement, deprivation of liberty, prosecution, psychological, physical and emotional injury of citizens who have committed no crime or violation of law. The claims and practices alleged in this complaint are common to all members of the class.

65. The violations suffered by plaintiffs SHARIF STINSON, MARIAM FARNUM, CHARLENE FINLEY, RYBURN WALKES, JAMEL TOWE, CHRISTIAN DUDLEY, JOCELEY FERDINAND, GARY SHAW and MICHAEL BENNETT are typical of those suffered by the class. The entire class will benefit from the remedial and monetary relief sought.

66. Plaintiffs SHARIF STINSON, MARIAM FARNUM, CHARLENE FINLEY, RYBURN WALKES, JAMEL TOWE, CHRISTIAN DUDLEY, JOCELEY FERDINAND, GARY SHAW and MICHAEL BENNETT have no conflict of interest with any class members, and will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class. Counsel that is competent and experienced in federal class action and federal civil rights litigation has been retained to represent the class. Jon Norinsberg, Esq. is a law firm with an office in New York City with extensive experience in civil rights litigation against state and local governments and the NYPD and has experience in class action lawsuits. Cohen & Fitch LLP is a law firm with offices in New York City with extensive experience in civil rights litigation against the City of New York and the NYPD. Further Cohen & Fitch LLP is also experienced in police, prosecutorial and court practices in the criminal courts throughout New York City given the fact that the partners of Cohen & Fitch LLP were both former prosecutors and have also maintained a significant criminal defense practice. Additionally, the partners of Cohen & Fitch LLP have spent hundreds of hours in the Summons Parts within the Criminal Courts throughout the City of New York and are personally familiar with the volume of summonses prosecuted on any given day as well as the volume that are dismissed for lack of filing or for insufficiency. Collectively, the two firms have litigated thousands of civil rights claims against the City of New York and the NYPD and have an intimate knowledge of the criminal process from arrest through prosecution as well as the issuance and the prosecution of summonses.

67. This action is superior to any other method for the fair and efficient adjudication of this legal dispute, as joinder of all members is not only impracticable, but impossible given the volume and continuing nature of the violations as well as the transient nature of the members of the class. The damages suffered by certain members of the Class, although substantial, are small in relation to the extraordinary expense and burden of individual litigation and therefore it is highly impractical for such Class members to attempt redress for damages incurred due to their wrongful issuance of summons and subsequent prosecution.

68. There will be no extraordinary difficulty in the management of the Class action.

Unconstitutional Policy and Practice in the NYPD

116. At all relevant times, the City, acting through the NYPD, maintained an express and de facto policy, custom and practice of issuing summonses without probable cause in order to meet quotas requiring a certain volume of summonses be issued throughout New York City.

117. As a consequence, according to the 2007 Annual Report from the Criminal Court, City of New York, there were approximately six hundred and one thousand four hundred and fifty seven (601,457) summonses filed within New York City.

118. Of the aforementioned summonses issued in 2007, thirty five thousand three hundred and four (35,304) of the summonses were dismissed before even being docketed.

119. In addition, of the remaining summonses that were docketed in 2007, ninety three thousand one hundred and fifty nine (93,159) were dismissed as insufficient as a matter of law before arraignment.

120. Additionally, according to the 2008 Annual Report from the Criminal Court, City of New York, there were approximately five hundred sixty three thousand one hundred and fifty seven (563,157) summonses filed within New York City.

121. Of the aforementioned summonses issued in 2008, thirty seven thousand five hundred and one (37,501) of the summonses were dismissed before even being docketed.

122. In addition, of the remaining summonses that were docketed in 2008, ninety nine thousand three hundred and seventeen (99,317) were dismissed as insufficient as a matter of law before arraignment.

123. Further, according to statistics provided by Eyewitness News, a total of 381,002 summonses, or fifty one percent (51%), of all summonses issued in 2008 were dismissed.

124. Upon information and belief the aforementioned number of summonses filed in 2007 and 2008 does not account for summonses actually issued by the NYPD that are never filed in any criminal court in New York City and therefore do not appear in the aforementioned statistics.

125. Upon information and belief the aforementioned number of summonses in 2007 and 2008 that were never docketed and or were dismissed prior to arraignment does not account for the number of summonses that were dismissed at arraignment as being insufficient.

126. At minimum, according to the data actually known regarding the amount of summonses issued and dismissed in 2007 and 2008, approximately twenty three percent (23%) of the total number of summonses filed were dismissed as insufficient.

127. The Annual Report from the Criminal Court, City of New York in 2009 has not been published as of the date of this complaint; however, given the nearly identical statistics from the preceding two years, it is presumed that 2009 will produce similar statistics.

128. Further, additional data provided by Eyewitness News indicates that since 1994 the number of summonses issued by the NYPD has increases five hundred percent (500%).

129. The statistical data in connection with the documented evidence of high ranking officials within the NYPD explicitly instructing officers to adhere to these quotas, is representative of an explicit and/or tacit policy, pattern and practice of issuing summonses regardless of probable cause or any legitimate legal basis for their issuance in order to adhere to summons quotas set out by the NYPD.

130. Additionally, upon information and belief, a partial basis being the racial composition of the named plaintiffs in this matter thus far, this policy, pattern and practice is purposely enforced in neighborhoods and areas which have a high composition of minority residents, which disparately impacts said individuals based on an impermissible classification under the Constitution of the United States.

131. In addition, according to NYPD's own reports, since 2007, one million seven hundred twenty four thousand nine hundred and forty eight (1,724,948) individuals have been stopped by the NYPD and of those individuals, one million four hundred thirty nine thousand eight hundred and ninety six (1,439,896) were either African American or Hispanic.

132. According to those statistics of the total number of individuals stopped by the NYPD since 2007, approximately eighty three percent (83%) were African American or Hispanic.

133. Upon information and belief as well as data compiled by the NYACLU, a significant percentage of the total number of individuals stopped were issued a summons.

134. Upon information and belief a high percentage of those summonses issued were not based upon probable cause or any legitimate basis under the law, but were pursuant to the NYPD's policy pattern and practice of having subordinate officers issue summonses in order to meet quotas established by the City of New York, the NYPD, RAYMOND KELLY, PAUL BROWN and the NYPD Supervisory defendants.

135. Upon information and belief this pattern and practice has a knowingly disparate impact on plaintiffs and members of the class, specifically other African American and Hispanic individuals, in violation of their Constitutional rights as secured by the Fourth and Fifth Amendments and the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

136. In light of the hundreds of thousands of summonses that are dismissed in a calendar year that are actually documented as being dismissed in addition to the summonses that were never filed or were dismissed at or after arraignment, is representative of the fact that defendants either or should have known, that many police officers and supervisory personnel were engaging in the lawless and unconstitutional practice of issuing individuals summonses regardless of probable cause or any legitimate basis under the law; yet defendant have repeatedly failed to take any action to end this conduct and in fact expressly and/or tacitly encourage the lawless and unconstitutional actions.

137. The NYPD Supervisory Defendants, including defendants RAYMOND KELLY and PAUL BROWN's failure to train, discipline or supervise officers regarding their obligation not to issue summonses unless based upon probable cause or some legitimate basis under the law, exhibited gross and wanton deliberate indifference to the constitutional rights of plaintiffs and members of the Class.

138. Upon information and belief, the issuance of summonses regardless of probable cause or any legitimate basis under the law in order to meet quotas and goals given to the officers is well known and in fact encouraged throughout the NYPD. Nevertheless, the NYPD Supervisory Defendants, RAYMOND KELLY and PAUL BROWN continue to allow police officers to continue the practice, tolerate and encourage these unconstitutional practices. The failure to take measures to curb this unconstitutional practice constitutes acquiescence in the known unlawful behavior of their subordinates. The prevalence and general knowledge of these summonses and the rate of their dismissal, and the failure of supervisory defendants to take remedial action, constitute deliberate indifference to the rights of plaintiffs and the Class.

139. The NYPD Supervisory Defendants, RAYMOND KELLY and PAUL BROWN conduct has been a substantial factor in the continuance of the issuance of these summonses in the absence of probable cause or any legitimate basis under the law only to meet quota requirements set forth by the NYPD has been a substantial factor in the continuance of such arrests and summonses and a proximate cause of the constitutional violations alleged in this complaint.

140. Because the pattern and practice of arresting individuals and issuing summonses absent probable cause in furtherance of meeting quotas and requirements set forth by RAYMOND KELLY, PAUL BROWN and NYPD Supervisory defendants has existed for many years the aforementioned defendants knew and encouraged this unconstitutional behavior and repeatedly failed to take action to end this conduct by subordinate officers.

141. Because this explicit and/ or tacit pattern and practice existed of arresting individuals and issuing summonses absent probable cause in furtherance of the quota policy explicitly encouraged by RAYMOND KELLY, PAUL BROWN and NYPD supervisory defendants knew or should have known that police officers assigned to precincts within New York City required training, supervision, and discipline regarding their obligations not to issue summonses absent probable cause or any legitimate basis under the law.

142. The pattern of unconstitutional issuance of summonses pursuant to quotas established by policy making officials within the NYPD and the City of New York; the failure to train staff regarding the nullity of the statutes; and the failure to supervise and/or discipline staff responsible for the unconstitutional issuance of summonses are so institutionalized as to represent a policy or custom of unconstitutional summonses under a quota system that caused the deprivation of plaintiffs' rights and those of the Class.

143. The NYPD and the City of New York, through its agents and employees has failed or refused to hold accountable high ranking supervisors, commanding officers and subordinate officers-in the face of frequent misconduct, over a period of years. This failure is the proximate cause of the injuries sustained by plaintiffs and those of the Class.
